of $47,000, Stolen
Today, Cause

Baltimore, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Three bandits held up and robbed the paymaster of the Henry Sonneborn Company, clothing manufacturers, of $47,000 this morning and fled in an automobile bearing an Ohio license. Later police found the car at Fremont and George Streets with a man's body inside. There was no trace of companions.

It was less than half an hour after the robbery that the car with the dead bandit inside was found. He was huddled in a heap on the floor with a bullet wound in the head.

It is thought he was shot during a quarrel over the loot.

None of Loot Found.

A None of the stolen money was found and it is thought to have been transferred to another machine.

The bandits drove up to the Paca Street entrance of the clothing company plant and waited for the arrival of the paymaster, of whose movements they seemed well informed.

As the paymaster, named Hall, arrived from a bank the three walked leisurely up to him, one carrying a guitar case. When within a few steps of Hall, who was accompanied by four other employees of the firm, the man who was carrying the guitar case threw it open and pulled out two pistols and a shotgun.

Keeping the shotgun fired and passing the pistols to the other two bandits, he ordered Hall to throw up his hands and wrested the satchel from him.

Several shots were fired, but no one was hit. The robbers then jumped into their machine and sped away.

ATTORNEY NOT "AN INSTRUMENT OF VENGEANCE" SO HE QUILTS ROLE OF MRS. WRIGHT'S LEGAL HELPER

Chicago, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Arthur D. Cloud feels that he is an attorney, but not an instrument of vengeance, so he is withdrawing from the long prosecuted case of Miriam Noel Wright against her estranged architect husband who is now reported ready to return from Mexico and sue for peace.

"I wanted to be a lawyer and Mrs. Wright wanted me to be an avenging angel," Cloud said, explaining that his client's persistent rejection of temporary financial agreements with Wright induced the action.

The attorney said Mrs. Wright's lack of funds led him to endeavor to

VACCINATION OF
WARDS OF STATE
ORDERED TODAYWork to Start in Dixon
on State Hospital
First of Week

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—C. H. Jenkins, director of the state Department of Public Welfare, issued a bulletin today ordering the vaccination against typhoid of every patient and employee of state institutions at once.

Due to flood conditions throughout the state and possible contamination of water and milk supplies every patient and employee not vaccinated recently must submit to treatment, Director Jenkins said. This will affect approximately 32,000 patients and 5,000 employees.

Dr. Warren G. Murray, managing officer of the Dixon state hospital, had not received a copy of the above mentioned bulletin this afternoon, but stated that the work of vaccinating 2,170 employees and patients would probably start the first of the week. It was believed that the reported increase in typhoid throughout the state, and the prevalence of some cases in some of the state institutions had brought about the order issued by Judge Jenkins.

Dr. Murray stated that there was a quantity of typhoid vaccine on hand at the local institution and that coincident with receipt of the order, he expected a sufficient quantity to carry out the work. It was estimated that the staff physicians at the Dixon state hospital could hasten the work to completion in a few days. At this institution, however, it was stated that there had been no typhoid.

FIEND IS FINED
$200 FOR GIVING
POISON TO HORSEGeneva Jury Lenient
With "Fixer" at Aurora Races

Geneva, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Charles Davis, 48, Dayton, Ohio, today was found guilty of complicity in a poisoning of race horses June 13 last at Exposition Park, Aurora, as a part of a race fixing plot. He was fined $200 and costs. The jury in fixing Davis' punishment took into consideration, it is said, the fact that he has been in jail since the day of the poisoning.

Apology and Edsith K died from poison that was given them in lumps of sugar which it was asserted Davis and Earl Clark, 60, Columbus Ohio, prepared. The owners of the horses were reimbursed by U. G. Young, a retired banker of Charleston, W. Va., who was to have furnished the money to bet on another horse in the race, Faenza.

The money turned over by Young amounted to $3,000.

Young testified against Davis at the trial, as did Frank Marion, Utica, N. Y., and Ernest Lever, Toronto, Canada, who were arrested at Aurora with Davis and Young in connection with the poisoning. The three said they had been assured by Davis that the sugar contained something to dull the horses' speed but that it would cause the horse no harm. Marion and Lever admitted feeding the sweet to the horses. They are now out on bonds. They turned state's evidence shortly after they were arrested. Davis always maintained he was innocent.

The formal verdict found him guilty of malicious mischief to an animal. Possible maximum punishment was three years in prison.

METHODISTS PASS
PEACE MEASURES
IN SENATE FIGHTFail to Mention Any of Candidates in Policy
Resolution

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A resolution declaring that the state of Illinois is at present confronted with most serious moral situation in its history and therefore should select a senatorial candidate free from commercial complicity and with transparent motives was passed today by the Rock River annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. However no specific candidate was mentioned in the resolution nor was any reference made to any of the three aspirants for the seat in the November election.

The resolution, passed unanimously and without the debate which has followed practically all previous motions including political issues, brought to a close the conference's discussion on questions of public policy, with the exception of a formal stand on the prohibition referendum.

Resolution Peace More

After qualifications of Frank L. Smith, republican senatorial candidate; George E. Brennan, democratic nominee; and Hugh Magill, independent candidate, had occasioned prolonged debate during earlier sessions, the conference's action in passing a resolution failing to endorse specifically any of the three candidates was interpreted as a peace move in order to prevent further deadlocks.

Adoption of the public policy committee's rewritten resolution, presented by Rev. A. M. Pennell of Wheaton, chairman, although made with the solution of the political wrangle in view also showed the conference's attitude on the liquor question.

Wet and Dry Issue

"The wet and dry question is the greatest problem before the country," the resolution read, "and the resources of the wet are centered in Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania. The same forces which lead in the fights for legalization of horse racing, gambling and other measures to overthrow the law are found at the head of the wet forces." The resolution further recommended church goers to continue their fight in defense of the prohibition law.

Next Meet at Oak Park

Reports of district superintendents were read at the forenoon session, followed by action on the political resolutions. Rev. John Thompson of Chicago delivered an address in behalf of the Garrett Biblical Institute. Newspapers were defended by Rev. Mr. Thompson, who declared that their style and dignified manner of presenting news, understandable by all people, could be of great benefit to the ministers in modernizing their vocabulary if studied closely.

It was voted to hold the next annual conference at the First M. E. Church at Oak Park.

SENATOR ASSUMES COMPLETE
RESPONSIBILITY FOR GIVING
UP AMERICAN METAL ASSETSDid Not Consult Atty.
Gen. Daugherty He Tells the Jury

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Complete responsibility as far as the attorney general's office went, for the release of $7,600,000 of shares of the American Metal Company was assumed by Senator Guy D. Goff, testifying in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial today.

Called as the second defense witness, he replied to questions by Max D. Steuer, counsel for H. M. Daugherty, Attorney General in President Harding's cabinet, that he had never taken the matter of the metal claims up with Daugherty, but had allowed them by his own authority.

George E. Williams, assistant to Thomas W. Miller, when Miller was alien property custodian, testified yesterday that he never met the late John T. King, alleged to have been paid $441,000 for expediting the claim and never saw H. M. Daugherty, former attorney general, except in the court room. Williams said Miller had given him no specific instructions as to handling the claim.

Richard Merton, German copper magnate, testified he paid King $441,000 mostly in liberty bonds, for expediting the claim, and that Williams had coached him in its preparation.

Williams, who is not accused of having had a part in the conspiracy, corroborated Merton's testimony as to the coaching.

Put Load of Shot
Into Back of One of Three Thieves

Harold Walker, formerly of this city, and now a tenant on the Sam Long farm south of Amboy, prevented the theft of several fine young hogs at the farm a few nights ago, and according to reports, sent one of three strange men, who were prowling about the barn, away with a considerable quantity of shot in his back.

Mr. Walker was awakened about the midnight hour, it is reported, by the loud barking of his dog. Going out of the house, he saw three men about one of the barns, and the dog close by. One of the trio was trying to quiet the barking dog. Mr. Walker stepped back into the house, loaded his shot gun and stepped out on the porch again, unobserved, and fired one shot in the direction of the three strangers.

The party dispersed immediately and he plainly heard one of the trio calling to the others to help him. His supply of shot gun shells being limited, he did not follow the strangers, but later heard a car start and drive south. Upon further investigation, he discovered the several shots had been herded into the barn where it is presumed that the strangers planned to chloroform them and then to load them into a truck.

Glenna's Conqueror

is Defeated Today

Haverford, Pa., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Virginia Wilson of Chicago, 20-year-old conqueror of Glenna Collett, met defeat in the semi-finals of the women's national championship today losing a 19-hole match to Mrs. G. Henry Stetson of Philadelphia 1 up.

Mrs. Stetson and Miss Wilson had one of the most exciting battles of the tournament, with the tide of battle shifting first to one and then the other. A brilliant rally by Mrs. Stetson snatched victory from the grasp of the youthful Chicago girl just when she seemed on the verge of another triumph.

Two down coming to the 16th tee, Mrs. Stetson made her stand, winning the 16th and 18th, squaring the match.

Paving Open Places

Work was started today paving the two open stretches on route 26 north of the city. A crew of workmen arrived yesterday from Kankakee and established a camp near the site and will work north to Freeport closing open stretches. Traffic will not be closed on route 26, O. F. Goeke, supervising engineer in charge of the local office, stated today. It having been arranged to pave one half of the roadway on each of the open stretches and leave sufficient room to accommodate a single line of traffic over the work, thus eliminating detours.

ILLINOIS' CORN CROP TO BE BIG
DESPITE FROSTSI. A. A. Says Survey of State is Encouraging to Farmers

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Illinois will harvest a good corn crop this year in spite of the frost of September 26, according to a statement made by the Illinois Agricultural Association following a state-wide survey on crop conditions.

The corn crop will be lighter than last year, and much of it in the bottom and low places will be soft but the early frost probably did more good than harm, states the report.

R. A. Norrish, extensive landowner from Whiteside county, reported that half the corn crop had matured, and the other half was more or less injured by the frost. He nearly a quarter of an inch thick was reported in that section, and corn only in the milk stage was badly frozen as a result.

"We will have lots of good corn in our section," said Adam McWilliam of Stark county, "but corn on the low ground and that planted late undoubtedly will be considerably damaged. I believe half or more of our corn will grade high."

The frost was a blessing in central western Illinois, according to J. H. Lloyd, county adviser from Hancock county. "It curls up the corn leaves and hastens the process of maturity," said Lloyd. "Our greatest danger is in getting a hard freeze before the corn is out of the dough stage." He predicted a normal corn crop for that section though not as heavy as last year.

Sam Sorrells from Montgomery county in southwestern Illinois reported that the frost had not extended that far downstate. Even there he predicted there might be some soft corn, since the bottom fields are far from maturity.

New York.—(AP)—The Yankee Stadium, where the New York Americans make their home, is the largest baseball plant in the country. It saw its first World Series game in 1923, the year it was built, when the Yankees and Giants hooked up in the October classic that returned the American League champions the winners.

Off described as "The House that Ruth Built," its vast triple-decked stands and spacious bleachers will hold about 65,000 persons. The largest paid attendance in the 1923 series was 62,817, but no standees were allowed and as there is standing room for several thousand the actual capacity has never been officially made known. In a doubleheader this month with the Athletics the Yankees were said to have entertained a few hundred over 65,000 cash customers.

The stadium is built on a ten-acre plot just north of the Harlem river in the Bronx and is understood to have cost close to $3,000,000. The ground was in a triple decked steel affair with concrete floors.

The playing field contains 160,000 square feet. The left field foul line is 280 feet 7 inches to the box fence which runs at a wide angle to the foul line giving the left fielder ample room. Comparatively few home runs are made into the left field stands. The right field foul line strikes the bleacher fence 294 feet 6 inches from the home plate. It is into the wide reaches of the right field bleachers and over this fence that Babe Ruth pops most of his home runs. From the home plate to deepest center field the tape shows 499 feet.

A drainage system was built under the playing field so that a torrential rain soon filters through the soil, leaving the surface in good shape for play.

Colonel Jacob Ruppert, the club owner, always has declined to consider installing temporary stands on the playing field.

FORCED TO GAS

Officers From Cell
This Morning

Butte, Mont., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Tony Vettere, convicted murderer, was hanged at the county jail here early this morning after he had been overcome with tear gas following an attack on officers who attempted to lead him to the scaffold.

Entering Vettere's cell shortly before the time set for the execution, Deputy Sheriff Robinson instructed the condemned man to prepare for the death march. Vettere seized a piece of iron pipe which he had concealed in his bed and drove the officer from the cell, following him down the cell corridor brandishing the pipe and a knife made from a large spoon, which he produced from his clothing.

Robinson leaped through a door at one end of the corridor and another officer locked it. Confined to the corridor Vettere shouted insults at the officers and dared anyone to attempt to take him to the scaffold.

Other deputies then brought two drums of tear gas and started spraying it into the corridor driving Vettere to his cell, where they were forced to use the gas for fifteen minutes before the prisoner dropped.

His arms and legs were secured as he lay in the cell and he was then carried to the gallows. There he received sufficiently to renew his shouting as the trap was sprung. He was pronounced dead in six minutes.

Vettere steadfastly maintained his innocence of the shooting of Antonio Favero here last November, of which he was convicted.

Auto Stolen Here

Located in South

A Chevrolet touring car which was stolen recently from near the J. L. Glassburn garage has been located at Kirkwood, Tenn. It was learned this morning, and Abe Herschon is being held at that place by the authorities. Herschon, it is reported, is wanted at Kirkwood for the theft of an automobile earlier in the summer, which he is alleged to have brought to this locality and disposed of.

The Tennessee authorities, it was reported today, are not desirous of turning Herschon over to local authorities, but are holding him at Kirkwood, where he will probably be tried for the theft of the car from that place some time previously.

St. Augustine, Fla., Oct. 1.—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Seneca reached the burning steamship New Britain shortly after noon today. The government wireless station here received the following message: "Coast guard cutter Seneca, here and is standing by. Still burning."

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 1.—(AP)—The American steamship New Britain, her deck plates beginning to buckle from the heat of fire which has burned in her hold since late yesterday, was 200 miles off Charleston, S. C., at 11 o'clock today proceeding under her own steam, but her officers doubt that she can make port.

The government wireless station at St. Augustine picked up the following message from the New Britain at 11 o'clock: "Will try to make Charleston if revenue cutter arrives but am doubtful as deck plates are buckling and red hot. Now 200 miles from Charleston. Fire still raging."

The steamer Rochester messaged it was 20 miles from the New Britain and proceeding to her assistance. The steamer San Jacinto also messaged that it was hurrying to the vessel's aid.

The revenue cutter Seneca was due to arrive alongside the New Britain at noon.

MARINE OFFICER OF "COCKTAILS"
FAME DROWNEDCol. Alexander Williams
Meets Death When Car
Plunges Into Bay

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Colonel Alexander S. Williams, in charge of recruiting for the Marine Corps in the western district, who figured as the defendant in the famous "cocktail" court-martial at San Diego last April, was drowned here this morning when a large closed car he was driving plunged into San Francisco Bay.

Col. Williams' body was taken to the morgue where it was identified by Mrs. Williams. It had been previously tentatively identified by officers, newspapermen and friends from photographs, a signet ring and papers in his wallet.

Mrs. Williams said the marine officer left home about 5 p. m. yesterday saying he was going out to some friends for dinner. He telephoned her about 9 o'clock last night that he was having a wonderful time. Mrs. Williams said she does not know where her husband went or with whom he spent the evening. She said, however, that it was his custom when out driving to go around the Embarcadero, or water front.

Saw Car Take Plunge

The car was seen to plunge into the bay by Frank Moore, a steward aboard the steamer Admiral Peary, and Joe McFarland, a pier watchman. Police were called and after considerable effort the car was pulled up with grappling hooks.

Col. Williams was in charge of recruiting for the Marine Corps in the western recruiting district. He was transferred to San Francisco from San Diego last spring after he had been convicted of "drunkenness and conduct unbecoming an officer" at a navy court martial.

The charges were brought against him by Brig. Gen. S. D. Butler, as a result of alleged misconduct of the colonel at a party at his home given in honor of General Butler and at a hotel later. General Butler had just come to San Diego from Philadelphia where he had served as director of public safety.

RECTOR SAYSJohn Barton Payne
Says Florida Holds Tourists Supreme

Richmond, Va., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Mayor Bright of Richmond today ordered delivery stopped on a check for $10.00 which was mailed yesterday to relief workers in Miami, Florida.

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Florida officials, from the governor down, and real estate operators were accused today by John Barton Payne, American Red Cross chairman, of handicapping Red Cross relief plans through the minimizing of losses in the Florida hurricane.

The sentiments of Mr. Payne were disclosed in a telegram to C. C. Pinckney, chairman of the Richmond, Va., Red Cross chapter, which discussed the financial needs of the situation.

"The poor people who suffered are regarded as of less consequence than the hotel and tourist business of Florida," the telegram stated. "The Red Cross feels bound to go forward and do the job the same and everyone should help."

"Our officials report the greatest need since the San Francisco disaster, with five thousand homes destroyed and 18,000 families impoverished. Red Cross assistance given only on basis of actual need, not losses."

Cites Miami Mayor

The message was sent in reply to an inquiry received from Mr. Pinckney which read:

"City of Richmond believing that Miami and surrounding country had suffered greatly voted $3,000 to the stricken area, the check being mailed by our mayor this (Thursday) to Mayor or Council of Miami and Fieser of Red Cross."

"Tonight our mayor showed me printed circular letter signed by Mayor Routh under date Sept. 24, saying Routh was convinced a very exaggerated idea of Miami real conditions had been created, that there had been a hurricane and some cheaply constructed houses blown down and some house boats lost. The damage was so great that Miami would not be open to welcome visitors as usual this winter."

"The sentiment of gratitude or real need seems entirely lacking from the letter. The mayor of Richmond was considering recalling the check sent by this city and asked if we felt justified in accepting further contributions after reading Miami letter. We received $1,000 from retail merchants association this evening, but will not deposit until we receive your positive instructions."

Tasty Ways to Serve Left Overs

THE problem of utilizing left-over food is one that most housewives encounter frequently. Where the family is small, a roast often wears out its welcome by last, third or fourth day. Scarcely a dinner but that there will be vegetable uneaten, even when every effort is made to cook just the right amount.

The use of gelatin with "left-overs" suggests an excellent means of serving foods that might otherwise be wasted. There are scores of attractive dishes that can be simply and quickly prepared with cold meats, fruits and vegetables and a small amount of gelatin. By using an inexpensive mould in the preparation, the eye will be tempted as well as the appetite.

For many years most people have thought of gelatin as a light, delicate substance with practically no food value. Recently scientists turned their attention to the product and discovered many interesting things. They learned that gelatin abounds in protein, an element absolutely essential to good health. They discovered that gelatin, unlike the average dessert, does not tax the digestion but is readily assimilated. In some cases it promotes the digestion of foods eaten with it.

At this time of year with fresh vegetables still plentiful gelatin suggests many attractive ways in which they can be served, especially the little odds and ends left over from a previous meal. A small amount of cold ham and a little chopped cabbage are the principal ingredients of a delicious salad that will please the masculine as well as feminine palate.

SPANISH SALAD
Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin in half a pint of boiling water. Stir until dissolved. Then add two tablespoonsful of vinegar and two cups of cold boiled ham, one cup chopped raw cabbage, quarter cup pimiento shredded, three sweet pickles chopped fine, and if desired one-half cup walnut meats. Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Another "left-over" salad most men like is that made with salmon and peas. It is a delightful dish for Sunday night supper, and attractively moulded is ideal for a small luncheon party.

Measure one pint boiling water, remove two tablespoonsful and use two tablespoonsful of lemon juice instead. Add one-fourth teaspoonful salt and dissolve a package of lemon gelatin in the hot liquid. Place a little clear gelatin in the bottom of any shape mould (an ordinary glass bowl will answer the purpose) and set in ice box or, if possible, pack in ice. When like molasses in consistency press in one cup of red salmon and let this layer harden. Then add another layer of gelatin and while thickening, one cup green peas. When again firm add last layer of gelatin and one cup carrots, sliced. Set away to mould for at least two hours. Serve garnished with green leaves and salad dressing.

That small but nevertheless annoying question of what to do with the little cold rice left over from some other meal is answered by the following recipe which makes a tasty and inexpensive dessert.

GLORIFIED RICE
Dissolve a package of lemon gelatin in half a pint of boiling water. Add one-half pint of canned pineapple juice or any fruit juice. When a cold liquid, whip to consistency of heavy whipped cream. Have two cups of cold boiled rice, cooked dry. Fold rice into whipped gelatin. Add one cup whipped cream, four tablespoonsful sugar and salt to taste. Set in a cold place to harden.

A zesty appetizer that is not too spicy for children is sweet pickle relish. It is just the right addition to a cold supper, but can be served with hot meats as well.

SWEET PICKLE RELISH
Dissolve a package of lemon gelatin in a pint of boiling water. Chop six small cucumber pickles and as the gelatin begins to thicken fold in the chopped pickles. Mould and serve on lettuce or greens.

CRIME NEWS WAS GIVEN PUBLICITY IN OLDEN TIMES

Ballad Makers of Shakespeare's Day Gave It Big Popularity

Champaign, Urbana, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Ballad makers of Shakespeare's day brought crime news into popularly long before there were any newspapers.

Charles H. Dennis, editor of the Chicago Daily News, used that fact today, in addressing the Illinois Press Association, to show that newspapers are not to be charged, exclusively, with popularizing crime news.

"The outcry," he said, "that some good people make against the publication of so much crime news is actually an outcry against human nature."

"Failure to present the news fully and faithfully, provided it be news legitimately of interest to the public, would soon destroy the usefulness of any editor. And the newspaper that fails to publish the news as completely as its readers have a right to expect is unfaithful to its trust, is not a newspaper in the true sense of the word and because of this fact soon will be recognized generally by its readers. It is headed for oblivion."

"The crusading element, by attacking the entire newspaper profession in a sort of holy war most unholily lacking in the essential element of justice, instead of descending upon actual offenders and castigating them for specific offenses, accomplish nothing beneficial. On the contrary, they bestow aid and comfort upon those few newspapers, that actually offend against good morals, at least occasionally, and more often egregiously offend against good taste. For if all newspapers for purposes of disciplinary treatment are placed in the prison's dock together, the few that go to immemorial lengths in dealing with crime are really afforded protection of material benefit to them, since to all intents and purposes they are represented to be no worse than the most scrupulous of the lot."

"Crime in the news must justify itself by its interest to normal human beings, and it is the duty of the editor in each instance carefully to gauge the degree of interest that inheres in any crime story. The appearance of any stories liberally plastered over a newspaper's first page is an offense to many critics. Any complaint of that sort is justified, if the stories, or any one of them, because of lack of importance, of novelty, of elements of surprise, cannot properly qualify as legitimate first page news."

"But who is better fitted to decide a matter of this sort than an experienced and conscientious editor? To rule crime stories off the first page simply because they are crime stories, to segregate them in some special compartment not conspicuously situated, as is advocated even by some editors, seems to me bad journalism, and therefore to be condemned."

"Many lawyers and even some judges have charged that upon newspapers rests the responsibility in large part for the difficulty commonly experienced in inflicting juries in important criminal cases. When talesmen are examined in order that their fitness or unfitness for jury service may be determined they are accustomed to say under oath that, having read newspaper accounts of the crime, they have formed a fixed opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant and that it would require evidence to remove that opinion."

"The formula is too ridiculously easy. It gets a discharge with a minimum effort for the talesman who uses it. A sure fool-proof excuse, it has a great vogue in criminal courts. The press is required to bear the blame, while, thanks to the slovenly, spineless methods forced upon the courts by approved procedure, each brazen perjurer who so readily lies himself out of jury duty is put by his perjury in no jeopardy whatever. That constantly reiterated threadbare barfaced excuse seems to be immortal."

"The solemn farce of not getting a jury, which goes on for days and even weeks at times, before criminal trials can proceed with the hearing of evidence constitutes such a display of legalized childishness as would disgrace a well conducted kindergarten. But the silly and cowardly practice of blaming such weak minded proceedings on the newspapers is just about played out, for thoughtful occupants of the bench and conscientious members of the bar have gone to placing the blame squarely where it belongs."

"Every reputable newspaper in the United States, notwithstanding the common accusation that the news papers revel in crime, will rejoice at all changes in the law and in court procedure that will tend to expedite criminal trials, make more speedy and certain in the punishment of criminals and therefore materially reduce the volume of spectacular, news-producing lawlessness."

"So far as I have observed, such measures as are urged by legal experts for the more certain punishment of crime are not intended to bring about a reduction in the present volume of newspaper publicity. Indeed, some of them are based upon the manifest need for more publicity."

"For example, the power of state's attorneys to liberate defendants by nolle prosequi clearly should be so modified as to make it necessary that the courts be informed in writing precisely what course is taken. Similarly full publicity should attend the acceptance of a plea of guilty for a minor offense in substitution for a more serious one charged in the indictment. Also it is clear that all proceedings relating to the pardon or parole of prisoners under sentence should be attended by an adequate presentation of the reasons for the orders entered."

McPherson Case on New Tangent Today
Los Angeles, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Men's testimony intended to define coiffure and cosmetics, augmented by women's versions of similar subjects has turned the preliminary hearing of Almee Semple McPherson from channels of routine documentary evidence to a detailed account of effects produced by various forms of feminine makeup.

Attempts of witnesses to identify the Angelus Temple pastor as a woman who occupied a cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea with Kenneth G. Ormiston, former temple radio operator, during the time the evangelist declared she was held for ransom, by kidnappers, caused the attorneys to change the trend of testimony.

Indirect reports said many cottages were demolished and that a Methodist tabernacle recently built at a cost of $30,000 was destroyed. No reports of casualties were received, but communication was severely hampered this morning.

Most Beautiful Girl in France

French beauty judges don't pick the bobbed-haired girls either. Nor, by the way, do they put the candidates in bathing suits. Here is the winner of the national beauty contest held in Paris. She is Mlle. Mireille Soubiran.

Others indicted include E. G. Kenvalinka, town assessment commissioner, a Grove Street republican faction committeeman; the O'Donnell brothers, gangsters and beer runners questioned in the McSwiggin murder investigations; Harry Madigan, in front of whose saloon McSwiggin was slain and many others identified as saloon owners.

One of those indicted is Michael Hanrahan, Chicago policeman working out of the state's attorney's office. He is charged with selling beer on his Cicero beat.

Pat Roche, federal agent who aided in the inquiry declared that "our investigation discloses that Cicero is a hoodlum-controlled town."

"It discloses," he said, "the worst situation in the history of the federal government, where in collusion between officials and beer runners was worked out and carried on with impunity."

Roche charged the syndicate had operated 4 years and had done a weekly business of $100,000, basing his estimate on reported confessions of saloon keepers. It was said two county officials might be involved when the inquiry is completed.

James D. Passo of Dallas, Texas, who was sales manager of the Port Gage Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, five or six years ago when Larson was its treasurer, said Larson was apparently a prosperous businessman and that he said he had been in Dallas "quite some time."

CALL CICERO'S OFFICIALS TO CRIME ACCOUNT

Indictments Returned Against Officers by Grand Jury

Chicago, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Cicero officials were called to account for the gangster murders and the bootlegging feuds and their accompanying assassinations by the federal grand jury today when it indicted Joseph Z. Klenka, mayor of the suburb, his chief of police, Theodore Syboda and 77 other persons on charges of conspiracy to violate prohibition.

It was in Cicero that the machine gun was first used by gangsters in the assassination of Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggin and two other men last March. Five special county grand juries have investigated that triple murder without indicting any one for it.

Gummen's Headquarters
Kunnen have made their headquarters in Cicero shot up election precincts, intimidated election workers, kidnapped precinct workers, murdered rival killers and bootleggers and spattered the village with bullets.

Only a few weeks ago automobile loads of gunmen shot up the Hawthorne Hotel and buildings nearby wounding a woman and a man in an attempt to kill "Scarface" Capone.

Gambling, liquor and bootleg feuds have had Cicero as their home and capital city, where politics has been blamed for the uproar of murder and booze.

Capone and his brother were among those indicted today.

Others indicted include E. G. Kenvalinka, town assessment commissioner, a Grove Street republican faction committeeman; the O'Donnell brothers, gangsters and beer runners questioned in the McSwiggin murder investigations; Harry Madigan, in front of whose saloon McSwiggin was slain and many others identified as saloon owners.

H. S. P. T. A. Elected Officers Wednesday
The High School Parent-Teachers association held their first meeting of the year on Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of the South Side school, with Mrs. George Dixon, presiding.

The program opened with two delightful violin solos, given by Miss Ruby Natness. Next came the annual election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. George Dixon.
First Vice President—Mrs. H. U. Bardwell.
Second Vice President—Mrs. Florence White.
Treasurer—Mrs. C. D. Anderson.
Secretary—Miss Helen Cleary.

Announcement was made of a lecture to be given under the auspices of the association on Wednesday evening, Oct. 20. The speaker, Dr. C. E. Germane of Columbia, Mo., one of the finest in the country.

Another announcement of interest was that concerning the Parent-Teacher talks given by radio from WGN, at 3 p. m., on the first Friday of each month.

Mr. Kietzman made a brief talk on proper study habits, emphasizing the need of concentration, interest and good physical condition. Both he and Mr. Lancaster, who spoke next, gave explanations of the various student organizations. In addition Mr. Lancaster made a plea for co-operation between parents and teachers, mentioning especially the need for home study and the wisdom of limiting social activities.

The afternoon closed with a social hour in charge of Mrs. Charles Beebe, Mrs. Robert Sterling and Mrs. J. B. Lennon.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.
BREAKFAST—Chilled apple sauce, cereal, thin cream, crisp graham toast, cornmeal waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Onions and eggs au gratin, rye bread and butter sandwiches, peach poly-poly, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled lamb chops, baked potatoes, creamed carrots, tomato and lettuce salad, squash custard, milk, coffee.

Hard cooked eggs and parboiled onions are combined with a rich white sauce. The mixture is then put into a buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs and baked thirty minutes in a hot oven. And it's surprisingly good. The eggs of course are sliced and the onions finely chopped.

Peach Poly-Poly.
One and 1/2 cups graham flour, 1/2 cup pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 table-spoons sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, milk, 2 cups finely diced peaches, 1/2 cup sugar.

Mix dry ingredients and rub in butter. Beat egg well with a table-spoons milk and cut into first mixture. Add more milk as necessary to make moist enough to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured molding board making a sheet about 1/2 inch thick. Sprinkle with peaches which have been sprinkled with sugar, and roll up like a jelly roll. Place in a buttered and floured pan and bake twenty minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve warm with sugar and cream. Cut in slices to serve.

Dixonites Guests At Ogle Wedding

Ogle Co. Republican—The stately home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Haas was the scene of a notable event Saturday when Helen Louise, their only daughter, was united in marriage to Joseph Benjamin Cleaver, eldest son of Mrs. Mae Cleaver of Oregon, Ill.

The spacious rooms were tastefully decorated with flowers and foliage of the season; two large jardiniere filled with gladioli flanked the broad bow window appointed for the marriage tryst; vases filled with graceful overhanging foliage produced an effect both pleasing and restful to the eye.

The mellow tones of Mendelssohn's wedding march as rendered by Miss Margaret Isham of Chicago, turned the minds of the assembled guests and breathed that expectant air which heralds the approach of the momentous event.

An aisle defined with ribbon in the guiding hands of Master George Etnyre and Miss Patricia Wadsworth, little cousins of the bride, formed a pathway for the bridal party as in unison with the stately accents of the wedding march, they approached the marriage altar. First in line came Master Charles Mather, another little cousin of the bride, honored as ring bearer, then the bridesmaid, Miss Virginia Forbes of Evanston, following whom came Mrs. Haas as matron of honor and last the bride on the arm of her father. These were met at the altar by the groom attended by his best man, Mr. James Withersell of Chicago.

The impressive marriage ceremony was read by the Rev. Ivan O. Miller of Peoria, former pastor of the Lutheran church of Oregon, of which the bride is a member.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of white silk moire adorned with old Irish point lace, with veil of tulle secured by a band of pearls.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of white silk moire adorned with old Irish point lace, with veil of tulle secured by a band of pearls.

She carried a shower bouquet of asters, roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Haas was gowned in green georgette with gold lace and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and sweet peas.

Miss Forbes wore orchid crepe and carried a bouquet of delphinium and roses.

After the ceremony, followed an informal reception during which a dainty luncheon was served.

The bride is the descendant of a family which from early years has been identified with the growth and development of this community and has ever maintained the sterling qualities of integrity and friendly service; possessed of a mind of unusual penetration and brilliance she won signal merit not only in her high school course but also at Wells College, Aurora, N. Y., from which she graduated in 1922 and is now president of the college chapter in Chicago.

She also occupies a responsible position in the educational department in the retail store of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., of Chicago.

News About Women
Ida Theumann Died Poor.
Berlin.—(AP)—When the beautiful Ida Theumann in the years following 1900 was regularly singled out as dancing partner by Chancellor Bernhard von Buelow at the annual press club balls, nobody ventured to predict that the celebrated beauty would die poor and forgotten in 1926.

The news of her recent death brought to light the fact that the former star of the Royal Theater had for the past five years lived in dire circumstances.

Ida Theumann came to Berlin from Vienna in her teens and joined the Royal Theater. Under the direction of its famous regisseur, Brahms, her talent unfolded and she became a favorite of the theater going public. It was not long before Ludwig Fulda, the dramatist and novelist, wooed and married her.

As Frau Fulda she played a leading role in Berlin's smart set. Chancellor von Buelow marked her out for distinction. Franz von Lenbach, the court painter, made several canvases of her.

Next Eugen d'Albert, composer and pianist, became infatuated with her and induced her in 1910 to sever her alliance with Fulda. From the d'Albert-Theumann union sprang a daughter, Desiderata, who after her mother's divorce from the oft-wedded pianist shared her post-war poverty.

Women Medical Students.
Buda-Pest.—(AP)—Hungarian women may once more study to become doctors as the government has overruled the university senate's decision not to admit any more medical students.

The Minister of Education said that Hungary could not bring up a question like women's equality, which had been settled by every civilized western nation.

Tennyson's Niece.
London.—(AP)—Miss Tennyson Jesse, the novelist niece of the English poet, Alfred Tennyson, is an enthusiastic sailor and collector of ship models.

Berlin.—(AP)—During the winter season modern German Gretchen will let their bobbed hair grow somewhat longer than during the summer, in the opinion of Hermann Voeste, tonsorial adviser-in-chief to many of Berlin's film stars and primadonnas.

During the summer most of my clients preferred the Eton cut," Herr Voeste says, "which gives a woman a decidedly mannish appearance. However becoming this may be in connection with sporting and outing suits, it does not go well with gala evening toilette. I already find that with the approach of autumn my clients are letting their hair grow several inches longer. The permanent wave, too, will again be in vogue."

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Sumner

"Alice in Wonderland," is still alive, and even the Cheshire cat, a real cat that spit and meowed 'n' everything, has not been dead long. I saw the very spot this summer where Alice went down the rabbit hole. We stood in the library of Christ College, Oxford, when the custodian dramatically pulled a shade, pointing to a green court and a little brick house he said, "there's where Alice in Wonderland lived." Alice was Alice Liddie, daughter of Dean Liddie of Christ Church. Lewis Carroll, a teacher of mathematics in the college, was a great admirer of little Alice and her cat and wrote the story about them for her special benefit. Alice is now a married woman living near London.

They picked America's most beautiful girl at Atlantic City not long ago. At least they say they did. But does anyone really believe them? Not at all. The old case of "many a rose is left to blush unseen and waste its fragrance on the desert air."

By the way, I trekked to Stoke Poges churchyard this summer where Thomas Gray wrote his "Elegy of a Country Churchyard." The same old yew tree, the descendants of the same old meditative cows, and the path whereon "the toiler trod his weary way."

Poor France! "The limited diet" has been ordered! She shall have only two-course meals, heath said M. Poincare. But he adds that means real courses. That does not include soup, hors d'oeuvres, vegetables, salads, desserts. It means that the diner can have only fish and steak or a cutlet, or the cutlet and a roast or fowl, but not fish, steak and roast. And no doubt they feel terribly aggrieved.

I watched Europe eat for three months. They make an evening entertainment of it. No dinner can be really finished in less than an hour, and they prefer to withhold the bill for two hours. It must be an order of hors d'oeuvres, a meal in itself, including sardines, herring, cabbage salad, carrot and pea salad, potato

PASSENGER BUSINESS SLIPS BACKWARD.

Passenger business of the railways is slipping backward in more ways than one. The latest report is that it is slipping back from the day coach into the sleeping cars and parlor cars. The statistical showing to a considerable degree may be attributed to the fact that the passenger business now tends toward the long haul and a curtailment of short hauls.

Discussing the demands of organizations of travelers for the removal of the surcharge on sleeping cars, a charge amounting to about 10 percent of the Pullman company's service fee, the Railway Age analyzes the earnings. It finds that between 1921 and 1925 travel in the day coach declined 22 percent and travel in sleeping and parlor cars increased at the same rate, notwithstanding the surcharge.

The Age asserts that during the first seven months of 1925 the earnings of the railroads from the sleeping and parlor car passengers, including the surcharge, amounted to 40.3 percent of the entire passenger revenues, while in the first seven months of 1926 they were 43.5 percent.

During the same period in 1925 earnings from day coach service amounted to 59.7 percent of the total passenger revenue, while in 1926 they were 56.5 percent.

The conclusion of the Railway Age is that the verdict of this large proportion of the traveling public is that the regular fare plus the surcharge is a reasonable charge in proportion to the quality of the service rendered for them.

It is argued that if the surcharge on sleeping cars and parlor cars is wiped out, it will be necessary to increase freight rates or rates for travel in day coaches.

So many circumstances and conditions enter into the changed status of the railroads that it is difficult to prove a situation by a single set of facts.

In financial circles, which are close to railroad circles, is the prediction that the railroad business for 1926 will surpass any other year in the history of transportation, and that the profits will be greater. That situation, of course, is an added incentive to employees to demand more compensation, and is a bar to railroads pleading inability to pay. The principal circumstance in opposition to granting of the increased wages then will be what the public can bear. Wage discussions in these days are not based on what the employer can pay, because he is expected to turn to the public and get enough to allow the increase.

Legislation since the war has taken fairly good care of the railroads, as it should. The patrons have money to spend and they demand good service. They have no notion of compelling the transportation companies to reduce their service in order to reduce the cost. They demand the best in transportation as in everything else, and must expect to pay for it.

Both steam railroads and street railways have had to deal with the question of diminishing returns as a result of increased fares. Street railway have experimented to a great degree. Probably the steam railroads have experimented less. They have had the freight business to fall back upon. They have taken care of that, have been making it profitable, and have met the passenger decrease in another manner. They have made little or no effort to regain the passenger business that has slipped out of their hands by reason of practically doubling their fares. The day coach fare has stood at an increase of four-fifths, and the railroads have received added compensation through the Pullman surcharge, which they did not have when the prevailing fare was 2 cents a mile.

The railroads have not attempted to get back what they have lost, but have sought merely to reduce passenger operating costs by shortening and discontinuing trains. Undoubtedly they are satisfied with that process and are not convinced that they could make appreciable progress in regaining lost traffic by reduction of rates.

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

A CRUEL ACT

"But I thought you wanted to come here," said Jerry in surprise.

"I did, but I've been properly punished for it. I never knew myself yet to try and feed my vanity and get away with it. I didn't expect that Tremaine woman was going to be here. I thought she would have the decency to stay away from such places now that her husband is out of town. She's primed for trouble. Look! She's sending a note over to Joan."

At that moment her brother, who seemed to be the only carefree person in the whole party, spoke to me. "I've decided not to go to Africa, darling. Why should I throw away all my happiness for the sake of some old dry scientific research?"

I did not turn my head.

"Judy, darling, I am talking to you."

"Oh, pardon me, I didn't know my name was 'Darling'."

"Stop your joking, you knew it was—you knew you were my darling—turn and look at me—I have hardly had a glance of your eyes to-night; and besides, you are not eating anything, you who told me you were so very hungry before we started."

I turned toward him dutifully and so did not see Joan's face and so did not read the note which had been sent her by Mrs. Tremaine.

"Judy," she called across the table, "here is something which I think might interest you," and she lightly threw the paper across.

I glanced at Mamie. I knew that Mrs. Tremaine was trying to make trouble for her, and then I read the note.

"My dear Joan: I am quite sure that you do not know that one of the guests at your party is a young woman that I am going to make co-respondent in my coming action for divorce from Buddy. I am writing this to you for I am also going to inform the management of her character immediately, and suggest that I, in deference to my position, cannot stay in this restaurant while she is in the room. This is to give you a chance to ask her to leave, as I know you do not want a scene any more than I do. Affectionately and cordially yours, Sally Tremaine."

"What does that cat of a woman mean, Judy," asked Joan, as I slowly laid the note down upon the table.

"Is she writing about me?" questioned Mamie. "Please, Miss Meredith, let me leave your party; Jerry will take me home and I do not want to make any trouble."

"You'll do nothing of the kind, Mamie," I spoke. "We'll just go on as though nothing had happened."

"But I must, I must, Judy," said Mamie. "She is determined to ruin me. I can't stay here. Please, Miss Meredith, excuse me, oh, I didn't think she could be so cruel." (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

NEWS FROM OUT-OF-TOWN NEEDED
BY EVERY PAPERA. P. Superintendent in
Address at Illinois
Press Association

Champaign-Urbana, Ill., Sept. 30—(AP)—Edgar T. Cutter, superintendent of the Central Division of The Associated Press delivered an address on "The Relation of Out of Town News to the Small Paper," at the 61st annual meeting of the Illinois Press Association here today.

"Out-of-town news is essential," Mr. Cutter said, "to every daily no matter how limited the paper's circulation. The larger city dailies will come along with the detail but every community having a daily insists upon knowing the day it happened, something of every piece of statewide news and anything of a startling nature from any part of the globe."

"Of the twenty seven dailies in the U. S. in cities of less than 5000 population, fifteen are receiving a daily Associated Press service. These fifteen are included in the total membership of 1215 dailies receiving Associated Press service running from a small pony to a live trunk wire, or from 500 to 50,000 words daily."

There is no conflict
"Formerly some large and small city dailies considered that their territories conflicted. That is not so now, for it is understood that news from the smaller city dailies is needed in the larger cities and there is a mutual exchange."

"Small cities have up-to-date citizens interested in what is happening in every big city here or abroad. Europe is no longer foreign and any of us read big news from there, written, as it is, by Americans with the same zest as we do big news from our own country and our own home town, but it must be of real value."

"At a recent state meeting, a small-town editor two thousand miles from New York said: 'My paper requires foreign news. The world is becoming smaller each year. More and more foreign news must be handled and printed.'"

"Recently there was laid between England and the United States a cable with a carrying capacity eight times greater than any other. This cable was extended by the Western Union by land wire into Chicago to more quickly get the news to and from these now neighboring cities, and messages have been transmitted dot for dot Chicago to London."

All Close Neighbors
"Chicago and London are close neighbors and each is bound to be interested in the other."

"Last week an Associated Press member paper in a small inland town printed this:

"The Press once more proved itself on the alert to inform its readers of the latest and up to the minute news from all corners of the earth, when Sunday morning's edition came out with the first descriptive and authentic story printed in the state on the sorrowful hurricane disaster which devastated Miami, Florida."

"The radio carried news of this disaster but everyone wanted to read about it in the newspapers. The small town dailies gave essentials of the greatest value to their subscribers. It was not only enterprise upon the part of those small dailies, but it met an absolute need. After this came the big city dailies with the greater detail. Each filled its place."

"The same applies wherever people read and whenever big news develops, whether it develops in our own city or on the opposite side of the globe."

Bibs and More Bibs for Sons of Princess Mary

LONDON —(AP)—Masters George and Gerald Lascelles, sons of Princess Mary, have more bibs probably than any other boys in the world.

Not only their mother cannot resist buying nice new bibs whenever she sees them, but the boys' grandmother, Queen Mary, also has a leaning in the same direction. She buys the boys a bib every time she visits a charity bazaar or a shop where such articles are displayed.

Queen Mary buys the plainer, more serviceable bibs, which "will stand a lot of washing." But Princess Mary is always willing to sacrifice something practical for color. The Princess always buys bibs with animals, funny figures or embroidered amusing legends and verses and bright tapes to tie them round the waist.

FRANKLIN GROVE NEWS NOTES

Franklin Grove, Sept. 30—Richard Maronde, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Maronde of this place, and Miss Ethel Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Dixon, were married last Saturday. The young couple went to Morrison Saturday, Sept. 25, where they procured a marriage license and then proceeded to the little town of Lyndon, and there sought Rev. C. H. Mason, pastor of the Congregational church, who performed the impressive Congregational service which united them in marriage. They were unattended. The bride wore a beautiful gown in the new Valencia blue flat crepe, with a hat harmonizing. Her flowers consisted of a corsage bouquet of bride's roses and swainsonia. Mr. and Mrs. Maronde returned to Dixon and informed their immediate families of the marriage but intended to wait until next Saturday before telling their friends as they will start on a trip at that time with the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. John Williams to Centralia, Ill., where they will visit friends and relatives, making the trip by automobile.

The bridegroom who is a cutter in the Brown shoe factory is an industrious and likeable young man who has many friends who join those of the bride in wishing them every happiness. She is a charming young woman, popular because of her sweet personality. For the present they will make their home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams on Van Buren Avenue, in Dixon.

Fred C. Gross was promoted by the Federal Farm Loan Bureau to the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, Mo., which is the head Land Bank of the Sixth District. He will have eight counties in the northwestern part of the state with a National Farm Loan Association. An appraiser represents these parties: First the borrower, who is entitled to a just valuation of his property; second—the bank, which is entitled to a good clear cut report; third—the bond buyers, who look to him to protect them in their investment, based on a conservative valuation of land and buildings. Mr. Gross, after spending several days in St. Louis getting acquainted with the different departments of the bank, will drive over the district by auto. We are glad that his headquarters will be in this place, where he and his family reside, for we would regret very much to see this worthy family leave our community.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Advt.)

Alfalfa Prop Is Required To Prevent Leak in Milk Profit

If every farmer milking only five cows would grasp the full significance of the above picture he could add at least $100 more per year to his profits, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, which is helping in the organization of 10,000-Acre Alfalfa clubs in many communities. With alfalfa hay, home-grown grains and corn ensilage, a balanced ration can be produced. When one of these is missing or when poor hay is used as a substitute for a milk-making roughage like alfalfa, there is a loss, a leak in profits, as shown in the illustration.

Postmaster John E. Moyer has sent the following bulletin concerning closing and dispatch of mails from the Dixon post office to members of the Chamber of Commerce the information being of vital interest to all patrons of the office:

You will note by the table that 14 trains arrive daily, which should give number one service, and if our patrons will observe, the suggestions offered will not only benefit themselves materially, but help to relieve congestion in the Post Office.

Mail for dispatch south leaves at 7:15 A. M. and 4:50 P. M.

Inasmuch as the heaviest dispatch is Eastward, patrons will find to their advantage mailing early in the day, or before 12:30 P. M. and in the event they fail in that, mail before 3:30 P. M. then they will be assured of mail for Chicago, being in for the early delivery the following morning.

Whereas, should there be congestion as often happens late in the afternoon and mail cannot be prepared for dispatch before the later train, if for delivery in Chicago, it may not arrive in time to get first delivery and thereby cause dissatisfaction.

We wish to assure our patrons that we will do anything in our power to assist them and we firmly believe they will be glad to reciprocate by observing and conforming with the suggestions we have offered, and if our service is satisfactory, tell your friends, if not tell us.

Duck Hunters Opened Season This Morning
The 1926 duck hunting season was legally opened this morning. A drizzling rain, a heavy overcast sky made it an ideal day for the ushery in of the season and hunters were out in large numbers for the sight of the first flight. Many parties were headed west toward the sloughs along the Mississippi river for the first shot at the birds.

Reports among local nimbards indicate that the season may be one of the best in years. Continued rains have flooded low places which make ideal feeding grounds for the birds on the southern trip. Large flocks of teal have been reported in many places with a scattering few of the larger ducks.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy loving kindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions. Behold, thou desirest truth in the inward parts: and in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom. Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

Though we travel the world over to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us or we find it not.

Cleanse the fountain if you would purify the streams.

Mighty spirit, dwell with me, I myself would mightily be, Mighty so as to prevail, 'Where unaided man must fail Ever by a mighty hope Pressing on and bearing up.

Purity in person and in morals is true godliness.

Properly understood, purity means much; and the process of purification should be carried into every detail of human living. The very act of clinging to God, who Himself is altogether pure and the origin of all purity, raises men above that which is unworthy.

TODAY'S SPORTS

BETTING IS EVEN AS CARDS, YANKS APPROACH CLASSIC

World's Series Starts Tomorrow at Yanks' N. Y. Stadium

New York, Oct. 1—(AP)—Baseball's big spectacle, the 1926 world series, dominated the sports world today the St. Louis Nationals on the threshold of their first championship struggle, opposed by the New York Americans. The series opens at 1:30 p. m., tomorrow at the Yankee Stadium.

Speculation as to the outcome appears to be about evenly divided. Supporters of the Yankees gain comfort in the fact that their favorites will have the advantage in experience, as they are now entering upon their fourth world series. But they have been crowned world champions only once.

Backers of the Cardinals fasten their beliefs of a world title for St. Louis to the fighting spirit of the players which carried them to the pinnacle in the National League after an uphill battle.

Contrast Final Games
Contrast of the final games of the season between the clubs also is taken into consideration in comparison of the teams. Shortly after mid-season, the New Yorkers had run up an eleven game advantage on their closest competitors, but a slump at the close of the schedule out the lead at times to a margin of only one and one half games.

On the other hand the Cardinals exhibited consistency in the campaign and in the final days weathered repeated challenges.

St. Louis has tasted its first championship after 35 years of waiting and its followers look for a spurt to carry off victory in the impending classic. While the American League club's rosters look to Babe Ruth to furnish the batting thrills, St. Louis also boasts a heavy hitter, Rogers Hornsby, the player-manager.

Betting About Even
Some Wall Street commissioners have the Yankees billed as favorites at 6-5, but others report even money. Herb Pennock or Urban Shooker is likely to receive the call for mound duty for the Yankees tomorrow with "Wee Willie" Sherdel or Grover Alexander in the box for the Cardinals. Commissioner Landis has decided that a resin bag shall be behind the pitchers' box during each game, available for use at any time.

The Cardinals displayed great batting power in a workout yesterday. Hornsby, Lester Bell, Jim Bottomley and Bill Southworth crashing out heavy drives. The rest of the team hit well against the pitching of Rhem, Alexander, Haines, Sherdel and Reinhardt.

Hornsby, burdened with grief over the loss of his mother, retired after a brief spell with his teammates. It was his mother's dying wish that he remain with the club and in fulfillment of her desire, he will stay through the series.

The Yankees' practice was confined to a workout of the infield and warming up pitchers. The Cardinals watched the Yankees and incidentally Manager John McGraw of the Giants left the field, his arm linked with Hornsby's.

Stock taking of the merits and demerits of the principals in the world series opening tomorrow, indicates that they are well matched, as contending champions should be.

"It" Is Big Factor.

Where the Yanks have an edge in one department, the Cardinals are able to show an advantage to offset it in another, making the ever present "it" the big factor in the ultimate decision. An injury to a star may throw all the machinery out of gear.

Experts agree that O'Farrell, expected to do all the catching for the Cardinals, has more equipment than either Severed or Collins, Yank receivers. The former Cub, however, is the only catcher of outstanding class available for Cardinal service and should be injured, Vick, the substitute, on the face of available returns, will not be able to cop with either Hank or Pat.

Variety of Pitchers.

Variety in plenty is offered in the many pitchers read for duty. Each has a star able to display any wares the occasion seems to demand. There are fast ball artists for the dark days, slow ball servers to baffle the free swingers and plenty of curves for those who may not like the "hooks." Gehrig and Bottomley at first base, seem evenly matched. Hornsby, in spite of managerial cares, has compiled a better record than Lazzeri to second and Lester Bell has out-pitched Joe Dugan. Koenig displays a slightly better batting average than Thevenow, but both are inexperienced. All the information the short-stops have of world series play has been communicated to them and not conferred.

If an advantage be conceded to the Cardinals on the infield, it must be taken away in the outfield. In Ruth, Combs and Meusel, the American Leaguers present a trio of outposts with a better all around record of performance than can be mustered by Southworth, Douthitt and Hafey, good as they are.

In reserve strength, the Yanks may be better fortified than their rivals. Pfaffel has alternated with Combs during part of the season and Carlyle furnished a constant threat as a pinch hitter. The Cardinals have Holm as an outfield reserve, but Blades, a fast man and capable batsman, will not be able to play in the outfield, although in an emergency he can pinch hit.

They're All Taking "Poo-ee" Courses Now

The nation's crack hog-callers "started something" when they held their championship contest in Omaha. The Omaha city firemen even quit their checker games to learn the pork-persuading art. Here's Charley Hyatt, one of the firemen, demonstrating that he can lure a pig nine weeks old right away from its milk bottle with his "poo-ee" cries. At the upper left is Mrs. E. C. Warner of Warnersville, Neb., one of the best of the women performers.

NEW SCHEME OF PLAY FOR OUT- FIELDER URGED

Startling Suggestion is Made to Players in World's Series

BY MAJOR HOOPLE
New York, Oct. 1—Egad, folks. Last evening was spent in a heated discussion up in my hotel room with a group of celebrated baseball writers.

The topic, of course, was baseball. I claimed that the Nidjka Beetle, of the Belgian Congo, was by far the most deadly of all the inhabitants of the jungle. There are few who will bear me out on this (they bore the Major out at a m.—Linotype's note) as there are only two men in the world who ever came in contact with the Nidjka Beetle.

One was Captain Swizzner of an ill-fated arctic schooner who met his demise in a fur coat. The fur coat was dwelled in by a polar bear at the time.

Well, sir, the only remaining person who has had personal experience with the Nidjka Beetle is myself. The other gentlemen were arguing the point of the respective ability and team value of a Mr. Ruth and a Mr. Hornsby, ball players, I believe.

Now then, the Nidjka Beetle is unlike any other beetle in the world, in the fact that it, er—ah, that is, well, it most certainly is, by Jove. That settles that, egad!

The point that I stressed in the controversy, was that if more ball players would slide into first base on a walk, it would add more action to the contest.

The same holds true with the outfielders. There are many innings that they remain idle with their hands on their knees chewing tobacco. You understand, of course I do not mean to infer that their knees are chewing tobacco—haw, an utter physical impossibility, besides being ridiculous, egad!

I suggested that during their idle periods the outfielders could occupy themselves playing three handed pinocle or, if they are not on speaking terms, play solitaire. My suggestion was taken very seriously by all, as I noticed several of the gentlemen tap their foreheads and nod gravely to one another. A silent compliment to me that I had thought of a remarkable idea, no doubt.

To get back to the Nidjka Beetle, a bounty has been set by the crown of Belgium equaling the sum of $5-00 for its capture and extermination. As there is only one of the insects in existence, this will prove a mighty task, due to the fact that it is so inconspicuous it does not know where it is itself. Hm-m.

By the bye, if this enlightening article seems confusing, it is only because I just finished an hour in a revolving door before being rescued. One good turn deserved another, and I will do the same for my liberator some day, egad!

WESTERN GRID SEASON OPENS TOMORROW P. M.

Element of Uncertainty in Many Camps Before Games

Chicago, Oct. 1—(AP)—Western Conference coaches today added that final touch to their 1926 stock of football, laid out in attractive display for the first time tomorrow.

The unknown element provided by three inter-sectional clashes among the opening games made the final sessions of more than usual import and additional interest hung on word passed through barred gates that several of the Big Ten chiefs were hosting a once over on games radically departing from the styles for which they are widely known.

Despite a cloak of silence about the University of Chicago stadium, it was generally held that Stagg, a persistent adherent to straight football tactics, was running over the moves in an aerial attack destined for the University of Florida, whose team arrived in time for a brief drill. Northwestern's preparation for entertaining the South Dakota squad tomorrow took the same turn.

Minnesota's varsity hustled through a final session involving prairie country football, also, on the eve of a clash with North Dakota. At Michigan interest centered in the aerial game built about Captain Bennie Friedmann and Oosterbaan and hurried to development for use against the Oklahoma Aggies.

On edge for an inaugural start against Navy, Purdue had to forego a last day of practice for the trip to Annapolis.

Coach Zuppke, in final session with the Illinois before the game with Coe was pessimistic.

Bad weather has further complicated the problem of finding another Granke and Zuppke said the squad was a week behind schedule. Iowa wound up a week of heavy going in the mud with a final workout for the Colorado Teachers.

At Ohio, Wilce reviewed a semi-open attack developed for Wittenberg while Pat Page was doctored with the Indiana varsity on the eve of their debut on his charges against DePaul.

Notre Dame's varsity likewise prepared to plunge into a fall's schedule simultaneously with the conference teams, but was somewhat less concerned about matters, Rockne having selected Beloit College for the inaugural game.

RISE AND FALL OF WASHINGTON ARE SPECTACULAR

New York—(AP)—The winning and losing figures of the picturesque Washington Senators in the world's championships of the past two years have taken place among the most spectacular of baseball's classic title battles.

In the brilliant background they have added to diamond history the tall figure of Walter Johnson, the Big Train, stands out, alternately tragic and heroic.

Johnson pulled the Senators to their first championship in 1924 against the New York Giants by holding the fort dramatically in the final game after being pounded into defeat in two previous starts. Against Pittsburgh's rampant Pirates last fall, the Big Train was invincible in his first two games, permitting only one run in eighteen innings, but in the gloom and mud of Forbes Field he was shelled into defeat as the Pirates came from behind to take the seventh and final game.

As spectacles of tense dramatic interest, of shifting tides of fortune, of sensational uphill struggles and heart breaking setbacks for rival contestants, these two championships conflict of the last two years stand at the top of the list. In Washington, there was a background of unprecedented fervor in 1924 for the first championship the capital city had ever gained while Pittsburgh burst into fanatical flame over its first triumph since 1909.

These two series, incidentally, were among only four which have gone the full limit of prescribed games, variously fixed at seven and nine contests. The others were in 1909 and 1912.

Observers recall the 1912 series, between the Boston Red Sox and New York Giants as one of the most fiercely fought of all. Eight games, including an eleven-inning tie, were fought out before the Red Sox finally emerged triumphant, beating Christy Mathewson in ten innings in the final contest, aided by a costly error by Fred Snodgrass, Giant outfielder. So nerve-wracking was their series that after it was all over the rival managers, John McGraw and Jake Stahl, declared their men could not have withstood the strain of another game.

The quickest series on record was that of 1914 when the Boston Braves, after their sensational pennant drive under the "Miracle Man." George Stallings, overthrew Connie Mack's Athletics in four straight games. The Chicago Cubs, conquering Detroit in 1907, and the Giants, downing the Yankees in 1922, also hung up records of four victories and no defeats but in each case one tie game prevented a clean sweep.

CALLAHAN ISN'T MAKING MUCH OF A RACKET—BUT—

Keeps Self Busy in Preparing to Knock Walker for Goal

Chicago, Oct. 1—Mickey Walker has rounded into great condition for his fight with Shuffle Callahan next Monday night at Dexter Park Pavilion. Under the watchful eye of Jack Kearns who arrived in Chicago last Wednesday, the former welter champion is ready to step into the ring and begin his campaign for another shot at Pete Latzo for the welterweight championship of the world.

Promoter Jim Mullen has signed Tommy Freeman to meet the winner of the Callahan-Walker bout as the first step towards determining a worthy opponent for Latzo in a title fight to be staged here this coming winter. The winner of the Walker-Callahan fight will meet Freeman and Joe Dundee of Baltimore will meet the winner of the second bout. Pete Latzo has consented to come here and defend his title against the winner of the Dundee bout. In this way Mullen will build up an opponent for the champion.

Mickey Walker is confident that he will come through in this series and be the man to face Latzo. The Callahan bout is the first step in his climb back to fame and Jack Kearns goes on record to the effect that Walker will hold the title again by spring.

Shuffle Callahan isn't saying much but is doing a lot of work. His sparring mates say that Walker is going to be knocked kicking for the Chicago Heights truck driver is hitting like Dempsey used to and is determined that a fellow by the name of Callahan is going to sail through Mullen's tournament and not Walker.

The supporting card of bouts would do credit to a top sport on any card. Joe Anderson, Cincinnati's great middleweight is meeting the class of the 155 pound division when he meets Del Fontaine of Winnipeg in a ten rounder on the card Monday night. Fontaine has boxed every man sent against him in the last year. He carries a wallop in either fist and is smart and aggressive.

Harry Dillon from the coast continues to impress in the gymnasium. He is tabbed as the next light heavyweight champion and his record as well as the way he works in the gym proves that he is a great fighter. He meets Joe Woods, Chicago tough 175 pounder in the semi final.

Allentown Joe Gans, Pennsylvania's entry for the middle weight crown will meet Wolcott Langford of Chicago in another ten rounder. Both are right at the top and logical opponents for Tiger Flowers. They go ten sessions and weigh 160 pounds.

RICHARDS YIELDS TO MONEY'S CALL; JOINS PRO RANKS

Youngest of America's Tennis Stars Joins Pyle's Circus

New York, Oct. 1—(AP)—Vincent Richards, youngest of America's tennis "big four" and hitherto regarded as the cornerstone of future Davis Cup hopes has turned professional, joining the pioneer group headed by Suzanne Lenglen and sponsored by Charles C. Pyle.

Richard's departure from amateur ranks, announced last night at a dinner given in Mile. Lenglen's honor on board the liner Paris, marked the completion of an international quartet attracted to the Pyle professional banner. The others are Mile. Lenglen, Paul Fere, fourth ranking star of France, and Mary K. Browne former American champion.

Had to Make Living
"I had two alternatives," Richards declared in explaining his move. "Either I had to quit amateur tennis and make a living for my wife and child or seize the opportunity to turn professional. I accepted the latter because I felt it gave me a chance to profit legitimately by my tennis ability. I am convinced that professional tennis has a sound future and that its influence on the game will be for the best."

Richards is the first of America's male stars to turn pro, but he may not be the last. While withholding further announcement of his plans Pyle said he expected to add several others of the "top flight" to his troupe.

Harris U. S. Chances
The acquisition of four internationally famous players has assured Pyle an all star cast for the opening of his transcontinental tour at Madison Square Garden, Oct. 9 and 10, besides creating a shakeup in the entire tennis outlook. The promoter's plans have progressed so far that he will hold an opening tennis championship in January or February, either in New York or Los Angeles with prize money aggregating $50,000 as an attraction.

With Richards out of the amateur fold, America's chances of keeping the Davis Cup next year against the challenge of France's young stars, seem further dimmed. Tilden and Johnston, even if they remain amateurs, admittedly have passed the peak of their careers while the younger crop of American players remains considerably short of international standards.

New National Women's Golf Champ in Making

For the other semi-final the survivors were New Jersey women, Mrs. Courtland Smith of Glenridge, recent winner of the state championship and Mrs. Wright D. Goss in the Short Hills.

FALL SPRAYING IS IMPORTANT SAYS ANDERSON

University of Illinois Pathologist Makes Recommendations

Urbana, Ill., October 1.—(AP)—Fall spraying with the proper materials is the only way to guard against a recurrence of the severe outbreak of peach leaf curl which caused the loss of thousands of dollars in the central states during the past spring and so deplete trees that it will be several years before they will entirely recover. Dr. H. W. Anderson, associate chief of pomological pathology at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, says.

The chief cause of the outbreak was the fact that many growers waited until spring to do their dormant spraying, with the result that weather conditions were such that the sprays could not be put on before the buds opened. Some growers also depended upon an oil spray, since they had not had any leaf curl for several years and felt that no damage would be done in the future, Dr. Anderson said.

There is no longer any question but that leaf curl may be serious enough to ruin completely an otherwise promising peach crop. Many orchards which would have borne a full crop this season did not have a peach on them. There is absolutely no way of predicting the severity of leaf curl. The only safe way is to apply a dormant spray which will insure against loss from the disease. Fortunately, no extra application will be needed in addition to this spray since it will control scale insects and leaf curl, provided the right materials are used and the spray is applied at the proper time.

From the experience of the past season, either of the usual dormant sprays can be recommended. If there is no evidence of scale insects or only a slight infestation of them, lime sulphur, dormant strength, can be used. If the scale is so serious as to warrant an oil spray the grower can use bordeaux oil emulsion. It is highly important that the bordeaux be used with the oil emulsion, since oil emulsion alone has no effect on leaf curl. A 4-4-5 bordeaux mixture should be prepared in the usual manner and to this should be added 1-2 gallons of stock boiled oil emulsion for each 50 gallons of bordeaux mixture.

The spraying should start as soon as most of the leaves are off the trees and may be continued until freezing weather. If the orchard cannot be finished before cold weather the spraying should be continued during the first warm days in February. Spraying after the middle of March in the spring cannot be depended upon to control leaf curl. It is better to use the standard sprays such as lime sulphur or bordeaux oil emulsion than to try any of the commercial sprays which the manufacturers claim will control the disease.

NEW YORK

New York—See-sawing up and down Broadway I caught a glimpse of a woman whose name once was a household word, but who today is one of the most mysterious and elusive figures in America. I mean Maude Adams. She had slipped in somehow on a private showing of "Potemkin," the much discussed Russian film. She slipped out just as quietly. I should never have known her. An aging woman, rather diminutive, caught in a surging crowd at a doorway and bustling into an automobile like some frightened rabbit.

Maude Adams, as the newspaper world knows well, has become almost a myth. Like Peter Pan. For years she has refused to see reporters. She has announced with finality that never again will she pose for the cameras of the press. The public that loved her? They must remember her as they saw her last.

She lives in practical seclusion. A favorite place is a hidden old manse, on a wooded estate at Tannerville, New York. There are many rumors. A persistent one is that she was about to take the veil. And when in and about New York she goes frequently to a nunnery on Long Island. She lives a cloistered life indeed. One dramatic writer is said to have her confidence and to have material for an authorized autobiography to be issued after her death.

Her business life is carried on with equal mystery. She is known to have some film invention which is being experimented with. A year ago she went to England to watch the filming of Kipling's story, "Kim" in which she is interested. She took passage on the boat under an assumed name. Reporters who went to the stateroom were greeted by a kindly lady who denied that she was Maude Adams and, hence, would not be seen.

One bright young reporter explained that he had been too young when she was upon the stage to see and appreciate her, but that he felt he would know her anywhere. He could not be mistaken. This must be Maude Adams. He felt that it must. The aging lady in the doorway merely smiled sadly. A few tears overflowed her eyes. She thanked him, banged the door, and was not seen again.

In Europe she appeared from time to time at the film studios. Her arrivals and departures were always furtive. And, just as furtively, she returned to America. Again under an assumed name. I am told that only a few, who kept it close secret, knew of her presence. Of the hundreds aboard ship, many her ardent admirers in her stage days, not one knew her. To us she must have been a mythical figure.

The same is true in New York. She is reported going to certain laboratories from time to time to watch the film process in which she is interested. If she appears publicly she is seldom recognized. Those intimates who see her do not talk about the visits.

Certainly I should never have known her had she not been pointed out by a friend, and, like Peter Pan, when I reached her side she was gone. A most mysterious and baffling figure. Perhaps she has become as Peter Pan and darts only through windows of memory, pleading with you to believe in the fairies of a bygone year, else she will perish. GILBERT SWAN. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

NARROW STREETS OF DIXON, FLAW SAYS MR. COUCH

Former Resident Here Would Like to See Them Made Wider

W. G. Couch and wife of Marion, Iowa, a suburb of Cedar Rapids, are in Dixon after an absence of nearly 25 years and are being enthusiastically greeted by their many friends of long ago. Mr. Couch sees many changes in Dixon and is amazed and delighted with the improvements here, but he picks out one flaw that he thinks should be remedied—our narrow streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Couch have been visiting friends and relatives in Freeport, Rockford and West Brooklyn, where a birthday dinner was tendered Mr. Couch at the home of his brother-in-law, Henry Isner. They will leave tomorrow for home, stopping off in Cedar Rapids.

Mr. Couch formerly was identified with Co. G. of the Illinois National Guard, the Dixon unit. He dedicated the World's Fair buildings in Chicago and was an employee in Machinery Hall during the great fair. He was at one time a telegraph operator on the Illinois Central on the Amboy-

Dubuque Division. For years he was a foreman at the old Watson-Plummer Shoe factory, successors to the C. M. Henderson Co. He had charge of the shipping and receiving and the finishing room.

In looking over the old home town Mr. Couch finds great improvements, especially in the matter of paved streets. He also told The Telegraph today that Illinois has much better roads than the state of Iowa and also has a better corn crop this year. He hoped to visit Mississippi Farm at Oregon and call upon his old friend, Col. Frank O. Lowden of Oregon, but was disappointed to learn that he was not at home.

Mr. Couch is a member of all the Dixon Masonic bodies, also is a Dixon member of the Elks, Redmen and Woodmen.

Oak Park Senator is Indicted in Booze Case

Chicago, Sept. 30.—(AP)—State Senator L. B. Mason of Oak Park, was indicted by the federal grand jury today with Major Percy Owen, former state prohibition director of Illinois in a new indictment against Owen and others charging violation of the prohibition law. The senator was re-nominated in April by the republicans of the 23rd district.

Storms Cause Damage on West Coast Mexico

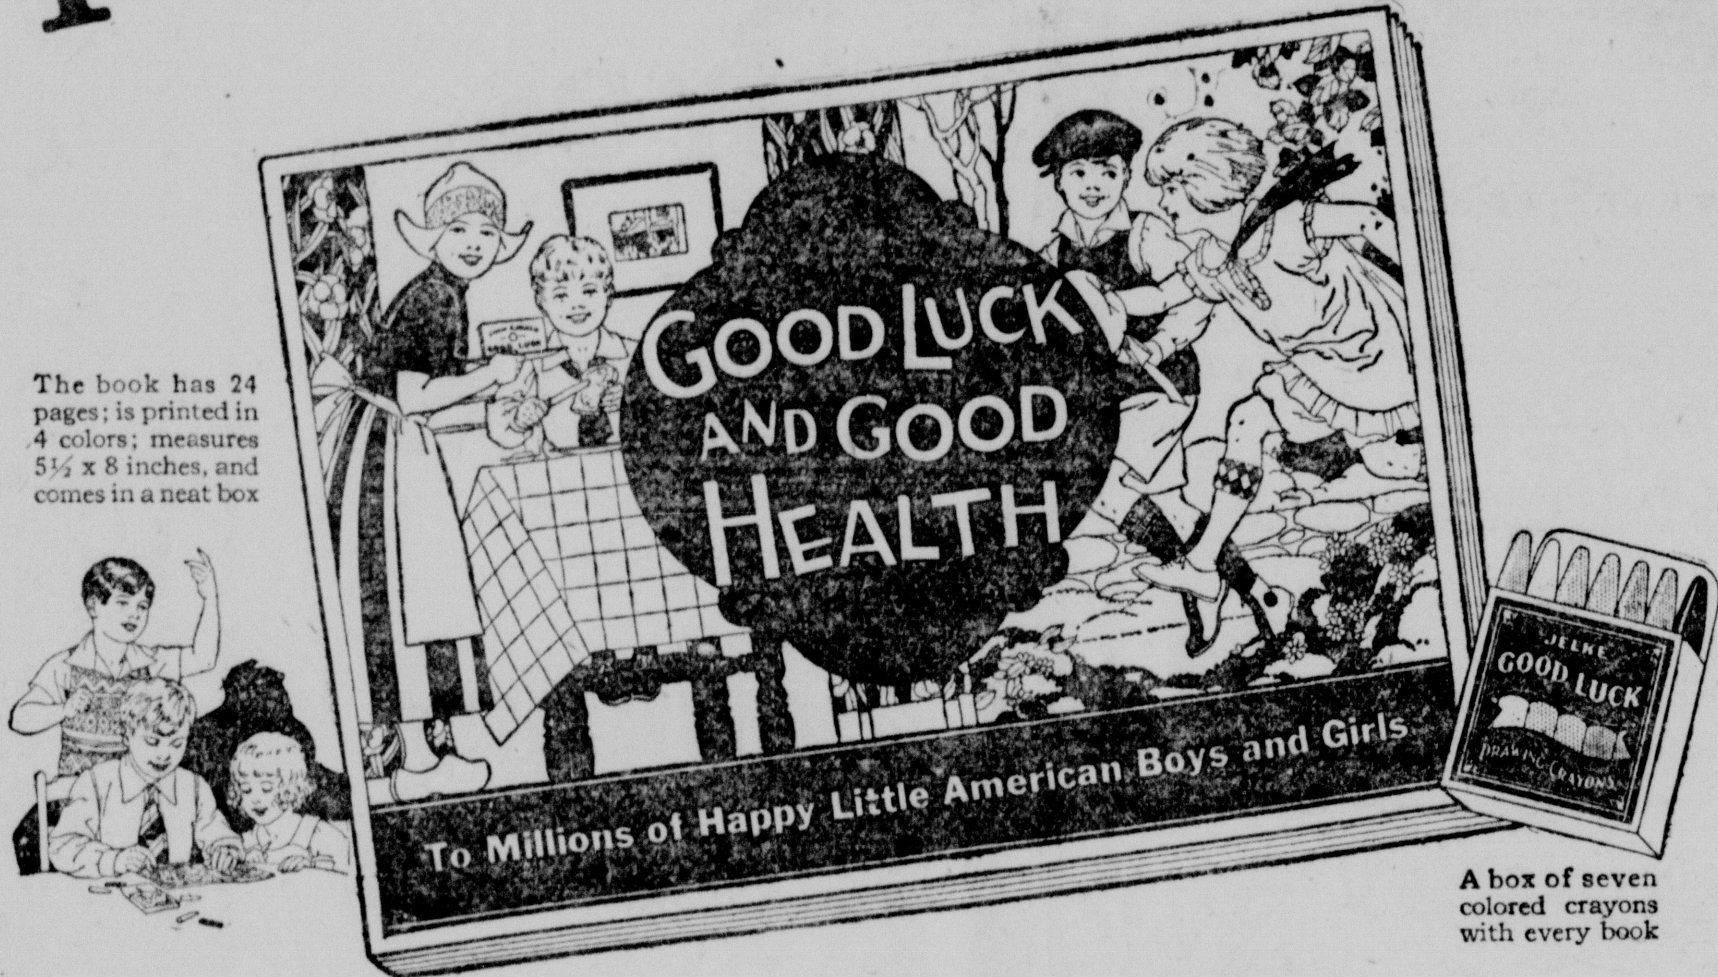

Nogales, Ariz., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Equinoctial storms along the west coast of Mexico, usual at this time of year have caused heavy damage at Mazatlan, state of Sinaloa and lesser damage at Manzanillo and Guaymas, state of Sonora, according to advices received here.

Wire service is interrupted. It is not known whether there was any loss of life.

Film Makes Seeking Audience to be Rude

Hollywood, Calif. (AP)—Film producers are looking for a movie audience rude enough and sufficiently discriminating to "boo" a picture.

Motion picture crowds throughout the Hollywood district where since the early days of the industry, films have been previewed, have become too courteous to turn down their thumbs on a picture which even its stars might admit had flaws.

Since the purpose of the preview is to obtain the reaction of a typical motion picture audience in order that faults may be corrected before the film is released, the easy applause of a too friendly spectator is not appreciated by producers.

They are combing the hinterland for new and less sophisticated audiences and the frontier of the preview, once limited to the neighborhood theaters of Hollywood, has been pushed back a hundred miles.

Japanese Royalty Has Own Fresh Vegetables

Tokyo (AP)—All the fruits and vegetables for the dining tables of the Emperor and Empress, Prince Regent and Princess Nagako, are grown in the Shinjuku Palace gardens.

By expert gardeners and carefully inspected in order that no taint may be permitted to reach the Imperial stomachs.

The gardens occupy several acres and include a number of large hot houses. All varieties of vegetables are raised during the entire year.

When the royal family is away on vacation, these special vegetables and hot-house flowers are sent to them daily in ice-packed private cars.

PROHIBITION TO BE ISSUE EIGHT STATES NOV. 2nd

Referendums on Dry Laws on Ballots for Electors

Chicago — Voters in eight states, at the November election, will have an opportunity to pass upon prohibition. The states are California, Colorado, Illinois, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New York and Wisconsin.

In New York, Illinois and Wisconsin, the referendum is on the question of asking congress to amend the Volstead act.

Would Amend Volstead

New York and Illinois vote on the same proposition: "beverages which are not in fact intoxicating as determined in accordance with the laws of the respective states."

In New York, the referendum is on the question of repealing the prohibition law. In Illinois, the referendum is on the question of asking congress to amend the Volstead act.

The question in California is whether to repeal the Wright act, the state enforcement law, adopted by the people at a referendum in 1922.

In Colorado, the question will be submitted as a proposal to amend a section of the state constitution "enabling the legislature to provide for manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, such amendment to be operative so long as in conflict with the laws of the United States."

The Missouri vote will be on the question of repealing the state enforcement laws passed in 1923.

The Montana proposition is on the question of repealing all state laws relating to liquor control, except the law forbidding sale of liquor to minors.

The Nevada referendum is in the form of a memorial to congress to submit the Eighteenth Amendment again to the states.

W. C. T. U. Active

In these eight states, the W. C. T. U. with 600,000 members, has laid plans to concentrate a fight to get a "100 percent dry vote."

In Illinois, George E. Brennan, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, who has advocated modification of the Eighteenth Amendment in his campaign speeches, is being actively opposed by the drys.

In New York, the drys are backing F. W. Cristman, independent and dry opponent of Senator Wadsworth.

Fortune in Gold Teeth

Keep Youth from Football

Mooseheart, Ill. (AP)—Teeth of gold and porcelain costing $5,000 will prevent William Lawrence, 16-year old Mooseheart student from playing football this year.

Officials of the "City of Childhood" fear the danger of having his teeth broken by a bump on the mouth and have forbidden him to play or even practice.

Due to mishapen bones in his mouth, his teeth did not meet, depriving him of the ability to chew food properly. Surgery reshaped his jaws and each tooth was crowned with porcelain and gold, enabling him to bite and chew.

CHILDREN of the MORNING

SUPPOSE your children, with the little training you had been able to give them, were cast away with other children on a desert island with no other guidance in forming their character than their own instincts and desires.... What do you suppose they would do? How would they learn life's secrets? What new basis of right and wrong would they establish for themselves? Would they, for instance, find a new basis for the sex relationship?

These and a hundred other interesting speculations are the basis of the great novel which the most widely read English novelist completed just before he died. It has never been published before. Its absolutely startling and revolutionary theme will make it the most widely read and discussed book of the year. Nothing like it has ever been attempted in the history of literature.

A group of children, ranging in age from six to eight years, thrown together in a lifeboat from a sinking ship, arrive at an uninhabited island. Their background, their training, even their languages are different. How they evolved a civilization, with no guide save their dim memories of early habits, makes the most fascinating theme ever dealt with in an imaginative work.

The story thrillingly records what these children did and how they worked out their strange destinies. It is being published for the first time EXCLUSIVELY by the

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH

H. K. Kellogg

Worn and weary—but not from work

ONLY a few months ago he was feeling fine. A full desk meant nothing more than a full day—a challenge which he eagerly accepted. Life was worth living then.... But now... now he seemed eternally tired, lifeless, exhausted. His head was dull and achy. Work was a frightful bore. Life was barren of interest. Where would it all end?...

In the work-a-day world there are thousands of men and women who suffer from constipation. They try this and that, forever seeking relief and seldom finding it. Yet there is sure, permanent relief from this disease—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the system its fiber remains unchanged. It remains a bulk food, as doctors call it. Because of its bulk it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It stimulates the flow of digestive juices. It absorbs and carries moisture into the intestine and prompts it to natural, healthy action.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief, or your grocer will refund the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit; with other cereals; use in soups, cook in hot cereals, or in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the original ALL-BRAN—a 100% bran product. That is why doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Get a package today. Also served in all hotels and restaurants.

Spoke to Methodists in Conference at Free-
port This Morn

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Govern-ment presses in Russia are printing the Bible, Senator George W. Dixon of Chicago, national president of Methodist Episcopal laymen, told the Laymen's Association of the Rock River conference here today.

He offered this news from Russia as proof of his point that the Bible fulfills a need in modern life, for which there is no satisfactory substitute.

"The printing and circulation of the Bible is a romance," he said. "In 1925 the circulation was two and a half million copies more than in 1924, and over one and a half million more than in 1923. Printed in one hundred and fifty languages! Here at home in 1925 three quarters of a million copies more were sent out than in 1924.

"In China the American Bible Society and the Scottish and British societies circulated eleven million copies of the Holy Scripture. In Russia the Bible is being printed on the Government presses. This increased circulation is significant. It says that multitudes throughout the world want the Bible. The Bible helps all social, industrial and religious enterprises. It helps to bring a spiritual and moral order into the world. The Bible unites people of many denominations.

Emulation of British Methodism in that it sends thousands of laymen out into the country pulpits each Sunday was urged by Dixon.

"In British Methodism laymen have been a great help as local preachers," he said. "On Sundays thousands of able, consecrated laymen go miles from their homes into city and country to preach the Gospel. This keeps the small churches open on the Sabbath, gives the laymen opportunity to give out the wealth of their experience to the people.

"Laymen of fairly educational as well as exceptional educational and business ability could do an unique service by preaching in Methodist pulpits and even preaching in school houses and public buildings.

"Rural Methodism needs a revival of lay preachers and city churches would benefit by hearing big busness and working men preach the Gospel from a breast and life filled with love. It would develop the laymen as speakers and prepare them for public speakers in social, business and political life.

"The laymen can do much to create and foster a spirit of unity among the church denominations, as well as in the churches of which they are members.

"Religion is a thing of life in its entirety. It cannot be labelled or parcelled out. It involves the whole man, social, physical, intellectual, economic and political.

"There are tasks in the educational, philanthropic and spiritual world; superstitions to combat, ignorance to eradicate, false philosophies to uproot, restraint, disease to eliminate, civilization to save, and this field of achievement is God's territory. It is a divine estate which must be developed, yet assigned to man in the performance of which the spirit of service makes for true greatness, the greatness of love rather than the love of greatness.

"Into this conflict the consecrated laymen enter unafraid. He is not a soldier of fortune, but of the cross."

He believes and therefore he speaks, believes in God and in his fellow man. He believes that there is a time for all things, a time to sow, and a time to reap, a time to laugh and a time to weep, a time to mourn. Prayer to him is the spiritual breath of the Universe. It is soul respiration, the sign of spiritual life, as breathing is the sign of physical life. Lincoln characterized it as talking with God. The Layman has caught the idea."

ROCHELLE NEWS

All District Department Chairmen, Chairmen of Standing and Special Committees are most urgently invited to attend all sessions.

Officers and members of individual clubs, and any one interested in Federation work are welcome.

Miss Hazel Brower, aged 17, died Wednesday morning at 7:30 after a few days' illness of intestinal flu.

Miss Brower is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brower, residing on a farm west of Rochelle. She has been staying, however, at the Jay Maxson home until recently, when she returned to her home because of illness.

Miss Emma Brower, sister of the deceased, and Mrs. Jay Maxson, have entered the Lincoln hospital for treatment for the same disease.

Meals is used by thousands, who swear by it. You will, too, if you will try a box. Ask your druggist.

TOO HARD ON SHINS

Berlin—Because the Charleston is ruinous to the "temper, harmony, shins and silk stockings of the customers of the dancing establishments," it has been banned by the dancing masters of the larger suburban palaces. In an official communication the dancing masters asserted there was no room in most of the halls when "people are kicking in all directions."

BRITISH FLIER COMPLETES LONG JOURNEY TODAY

Greeted at End of Trip
London to Australia and Return

London, Oct. 1—(AP)—A. J. Cobham Great Britain's leading long distance aviator, arrived here today completing his sensational 28,000 mile flight to Australia and return.

The plane came to rest on the water by the Parliament buildings at 2:26 p. m. while huge crowds lining the banks of the river for a great distance, gave the flier a tremendous ovation.

No airplane voyage since the late Captain Sir John Alcock and Lieut. Brown of the British army flew from New Foundland across the Atlantic to Ireland in 1919, had aroused public interest equal to that of Cobham's.

Flew Over London

The last lap of his flight started from Sartrouville near Paris at 11:15 a. m. After crossing the channel, he took a course over the Thames at Gravesend and went up the river to Hamersmith before turning back to land at Westminster.

Thus the citizens had an opportunity of welcoming the flier along many miles to the heart of London without crowding to the alighting point.

Cobham in a long dispatch sent from France to the Daily Mail paid tribute to Mechanician Ward who succeeded A. Gullott, who died from a bullet wound received when an Arab tribesman fired at the plane in Iraq.

Covered 28,000 Miles

Cobham estimated the distance covered by him during this three months journey as 28,000 miles or more than the earth's girth. His actual flying time was about 320 hours.

The people are guessing what recognition is in store for Cobham. The main version is that King George will confer knighthood upon him.

Cobham is a most cautious airman. He does no spectacular stunts. Mrs. Cobham says she would not worry about his safety while he is on a flight if well-meaning friends did not continually telephone her every minute when her husband is overdue on any particular leg of his journey. She says she hopes that he now will settle down to the life of a prosaic earthling.

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—Advice from Dr. Winifred Stoner: If women wish to succeed in any line of work they should get married. Man is superior mentally, physically and economically she argues. Woman is superior spiritually, esthetically and morally and a combination of the six adverbs produce the highest results.

Syracuse—Helen Wainwright, who could do just as well in an Atlantic City beauty pageant as she could in swimming the English Channel, is taking the high dive. The lucky man is one Ben M. Owen.

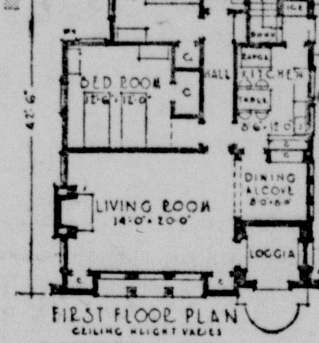

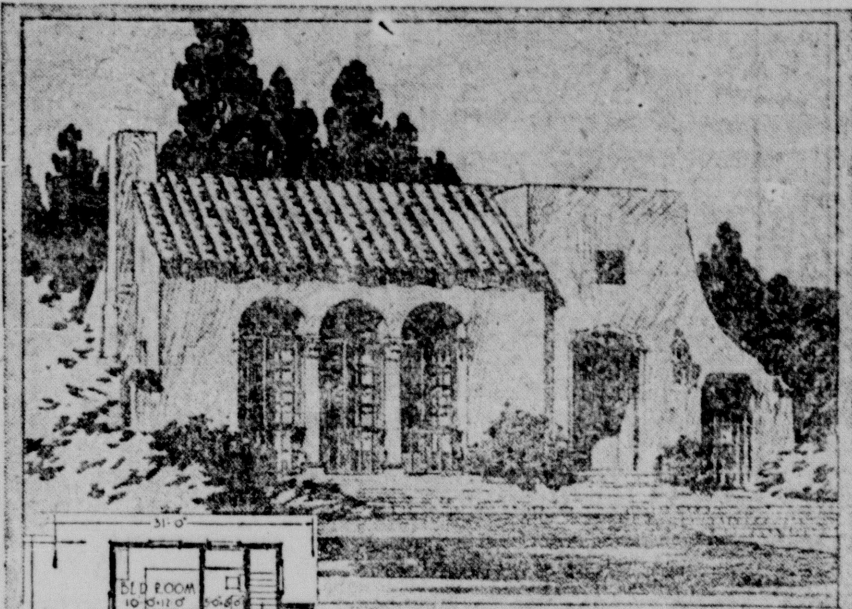

New York—The Charleston and its latest version, the Black Bottom, are making a lot of money for some physicians. One doctor who has an office on Park Avenue, says that at least 90 percent of his cases now are dislocated cartilage in the knee joint. The patients are mostly women.

Valley, Wyo.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker would rather hunt elk than see Hurnsley and Ruth in action; but nevertheless they are taking a radio into the wilds with them.

Lincoln, Neb.—One of various reasons why "Charley" Dawes and "Jack" Pershing who are hunting together, have been chums for years; each had to borrow a dress suit to get married in.

New York—Howard Victor Keen,

Practical Four-Room Plan for that "Castle In Spain"

Being only thirty-one feet across, it is placed on a fifty-foot lot and should preferably be set rather well back in order to get the full effect of the terracing. And, like practically every other house, it needs careful and intelligent landscaping if you are going to give it the natural setting it deserves.

Notice how the front wall is extended out to accommodate the pretty little gate through which the service entrance is reached. Besides giving a tasteful balance to the house as a whole, this serves to conceal unsightly refuse cans and incinerator.

The loggia is recessed to give shelter from the weather and has a floor of red tiles. Entering directly from the loggia into the story and a half living room one is immediately impressed with its generous proportions, the triple arched windows reaching from the floor almost to the ceiling and the cypress beamed ceiling which follows the roof line.

The open fireplace is flanked with a small casement window. Either side of the studio windows, a closet has been provided, one near the front door for wraps and umbrellas, the other for general storage. One of the beauties of such a room, is that it requires only a few well chosen pieces to furnish it, as the beamed ceilings, fireplace and balcony windows give it a furnished appearance even when empty.

The dining room alcove is well set off from the living room and needs but a simple, attractive breakfast set to complete it. A small china closet is built-in.

The day of the "hired girl" seems gone forever and now that she has got used to the idea, the average housewife is satisfied to do her own work until she enters the class. Only she must have everything planned for her convenience. With this in mind, the kitchen has received especially deft planning here, giving the greatest economy of space and handiness to working equipment. The sink is placed directly beneath the casement windows. The back entry way contains the refrigerator and the stairs leading down to the basement.

The bedrooms have been placed well at the back, quite shut off from the rest of the house and giving each a sense of privacy which is apt to be lacking in one-story homes. Both the rooms have double exposure and generous sized closets. One of the rooms is big enough for twin beds.

In contrast to the "jerry building" that is going into many small houses today, this one has the best of materials and construction throughout. One significant aspect is the small amount of upkeep it will require. The stucco walls call for no attention and the tile floor, in addition to having so attractive an appearance, will last practically forever.

Temperature comfort has been built right into the very structure by complete insulation. The demand today is for houses that are warm and easily and economically heated in winter, while keeping out the heat during the summer months. Temperature comfort, therefore, has been built right into the very structure of this house, by sheathing the walls and roof with celotex. If desired, this house can be built without basement, installing the heating plant off the kitchen. In this case, the floor also should be celotex insulated.

PANKHURST TRIO FAR APART IN POLITICAL DOPE

Therefore Emmeline and Daughters Never Discuss Questions

London—(AP)—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and her two daughters have been given the title of England's most remarkable family trio.

Mother and daughters all sit down at the same tea table, now and then, but their interests in life, and their aims, politically and religiously, and their methods of bringing about their respective reforms designed to regenerate society, are as far apart as the poles.

Banned At Table

But they never discuss politics or religion over the tea cups.

Mrs. Pankhurst, long known as the militant suffrage leader, has taken up the cudgel against Communism, while her daughter Sylvia goes on, more energetically than ever, advocating the teachings of Lenin.

Miss Christabel, the eldest of the two girls, is tremendously interested in religion. She loathes politics.

Mother After Votes

Mrs. Pankhurst herself has joined the Conservative party and for weeks has been addressing meetings in her endeavor to rouse the British women voters against Communism and all its works. As one who did her share in the effort to win the rights of citizenship for women, she is now "out," she declares, to defend what she has long worked for: the voting power of citizenship in order to defeat the "deadly machinations of the revolutionaries."

Christabel's Religion

While Mrs. Pankhurst is renewing her youth and seeking to save society by political propaganda, Christabel has soared into the atmosphere of religious prophecy.

Miss Christabel is preparing to start a lecture tour in London and the provinces under the auspices of the Second Advent Movement. Miss Pankhurst will tell her audiences that she sees nothing ahead but economic troubles, social and political decadence, which can only be cured by the second coming of Christ, which she believes to be at hand. She notes the signs in wars and rumors of wars, earthquakes and the rise of false prophets. But these things must be: it is the Divine program, she feels.

Sylvia Preaches Sovietism

Miss Sylvia has no use for constitutional propaganda, or the Second Advent in her scheme for saving the world. She has separated herself from her mother and sister and allied herself heart and soul with the Soviet Movement in Russia. She is a persona grata in Leningrad and Moscow. She considers Soviet rule is accomplishing all the reforms needed for the regeneration of society.

While she earns her living as an artist, she helps to spread the tenets of her faith. Her movements are "wrapped in mystery." Her old friends of the days when she edited "The Worker's Dreadnought," in Fleet Street know her no more.

HEROINE GOLD

RUSH IS AGED

AND DESTITUTE

Carried News of Gold

Discovery in North,

Is Now Poor

Colton, Cal., Oct. 1—(AP)—"Mother" Woods, who carried the news across Alaska that a great gold strike had been made on the spot which soon became Nome, wants to take in washings so that she may eat.

Mrs. C. W. Chace, as "Mother" Woods is now known, left the north with $35,000 in her money belt. Adversity began with the loss of her fortune and was followed by the disappearance of her husband after an automobile accident.

Nome's First White Woman.

Friend of Rex Beach, Jack London and Tex Rickard in the North during the gold rush days, Mrs. Chace declares she can do as good a washing as anyone, in spite of her 70 years. She says she was the first white woman to set foot in Nome and that she was "Anna Black" of Rex Beach's "The Spoilers."

Mrs. Chace heard and heeded the call of the North in 1894 and lived in Alaska 22 years with only infrequent visits "outside." As Mrs. Woods, before her marriage in Dawson to C. W. Chace, she became known over all Alaska as "Mother" Woods, friend of the scoundrel. It was while carrying letters and newspapers from "back home" to the soundings in the interior that she spread the news from St. Michael to Dawson that gold had been struck on the Bering Strait coast.

Lost Her Fortune

Ten years ago, with money made and years of comfort "in the states" seemingly before them, Mr. and Mrs. Chace left Alaska to make their home in Nevada. But the gold gained from the cold hills and sands of rushing rivers in the North melted away in the South and fortune vanished.

Mrs. Chace came here in quest of a living. She placed a modest advertisement in a newspaper asking for washings to do at her small home on the outskirts of town.

Tracked by the Police

Novel by William B. Courtney

Copyright, 1926, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"TRACKED BY THE POLICE," starring Rin-Tin-Tin, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
When, in the course of a dangerous raid in France, a German war dog gives her life to save his, Jimmy Ford, an American doughboy, gratefully adopts her puppy. He and his mate name their new mascot Rin-Tin-Tin. He smuggles Rinty home after the war. Murtagh, a politician, covets Jimmy's sweetheart, Ruth Allen; Murtagh is secretly in league with a notorious gang. Jimmy's father, a police lieutenant, is mysteriously murdered. Jimmy joins the force to avenge him. Jimmy has an able ally in Rin-Tin-Tin, now full-grown. Murtagh calls on Ruth, who suddenly recognizes his lust.

Never before had Ruth realized that the look of a man could be so tangible as to stifle her; so terrifying, so tightening, so repulsive with an unwelcome ardor, as to make her whole body and soul go some against its imaginary caress. She wanted to cry out, to run, to make some wild dash and beat frantically against the walls of the little kitchen as a swallow might beat against cage bars.
"Why, Ruthie, what in the world is the matter with you?" asked her father deprecatingly, almost reproachfully. Tarnation, he did wish she would not be so womanly, so scary, when Murtagh was visiting. Bother women, they were always that way—flushing and stammering and taking things so. Ruth's mother had been that way, too. Ruth was being a silly, frightened little schoolgirl in front of Murtagh, a worth while man who courted; yet always so headstrong and obstinate, and merry and bright in her attachment for that boy cop! Allen nodded apologetically to Murtagh: "She's ill. I know. She isn't feeling good this morning. Women are always ill—"
Murtagh wore such a grin as makes the Sphinx, or an Old World

"That Rinty's a nasty beast."

gargoyle, or an Alaskan totem image so unlovely to look upon; so hideously all-wise! He said nothing.
Ruth, blushing furiously, tried her level best to dissemble, to be hospitable and grateful to the man who was her father's benefactor: "It's so stuffy in here. And I'm so excited about father going to his new job."

Murtagh grinned wider—and still said nothing. James Allen beamed indulgently, yet uncertainly, upon his daughter as she held his coat. He piped to Murtagh: "You see. Just as I told you. Ruth's just as grateful as I am, Mr. Murtagh, for your kindness. I don't know why you should be so kind to a poor nobody like me, either."

At this point Murtagh came out of his grinning brown study—a study in which he had never for a moment relaxed the lecherous fixity of his gaze upon Ruth's worried, harassed face. He shrugged and overspread his oily hands:

"Oh, don't mention it. I'm only too glad to be of service to you—and Ruth."
Realization of the meaning of Murtagh's present looks and words and of his assiduous attempts to be helpful the past two years, was draining the strength from Ruth's body. She wished he would go. Instead, he sat down.

Ruth said: "Won't father have to be hurrying along now if you're going to take him down there and get him started?"

"It's all right if he doesn't show up exactly on time as long as he's with me," retorted Murtagh easily. "By the way, to get back to my reception downstairs, your friend, Jimmy Ford, makes rather early calls, don't he?"

"He just stopped in on the way to work—he and Rinty."
Murtagh's face darkened. "That Rinty's a nasty beast, and I'm going to try to make Captain O'Brien have him shot."

Ruth forgot everything else in a quick flood of alarm for Rinty: "Oh, you mustn't do that, Mr. Murtagh. Rinty's a wonderful dog. It would break my heart if anything happened to him—"

"And he'll break somebody's neck or rip it open if we don't get

Fulton Girl Returns Home After Five Days

"Off on a little trip with friends." That's the only excuse Bernice Bouvia, 18-year-old Fulton girl, made yesterday to her parents when she appeared at the breakfast table, after having been absent since last Thursday night. Her return was as mysterious as her disappearance.

Thursday evening about 10:30 o'clock she left the East End cafe in Lyons and when she did not return home, her parents notified the police and Monday evening her description was broadcast in hopes of locating her. Mrs. Bouvia got up yesterday morning and prepared breakfast and was greatly surprised and joyous to have her daughter come out of her room and take her accustomed place at the table.

She was dressed in a new dress, and her hair was styled in a new fashion. She had been away for five days, and her parents were very anxious to see her. She had been very happy and had enjoyed her trip very much.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CHERRY LANE, a stenographer, is utterly different from her sister, FAITH, who does all the work for the family of six, including her semi-invalid mother, her father, who is a carpenter and contractor in a small way; her brother, JUNIOR, or "Long" Lane, and JOY, nine.

Cherry, the flirt, is carrying on affairs with a dozen admirers, including CHESTER HART, formerly a suitor of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect; ALBERT ETTLESON, a married traveling salesman; old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's present employer, and CHRIS WILEY.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, showers Faith with attentions, but Faith cares only for Bob Hathaway, who is infatuated with Cherry.

At a party at Pruitt's, to which Faith cannot go because of a heart attack suffered by her mother, Hathaway sees Cherry in Chris Wiley's arms and goes to Faith for comfort, not realizing she loves him. Faith remonstrates with Cherry, who retorts that she will not marry Hathaway if she can possibly land George Pruitt.

Pruitt continues to pay marked attentions to Faith and on a Sunday takes her to a nearby restaurant for dinner. Before leaving, Faith finds a packed and locked suitcase in Cherry's closet and the memory of a mysterious telegram which Cherry has received from Ettleson fills her with dark suspicions.

She has no time to discuss the matter with Cherry, but asks Junior to hide the suitcase in his automobile truck. Pruitt tells Faith that he loves her and humbly asks her to kiss him. Strangely enough, she raises her lips to his.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVI

WHEN George Pruitt's flushed lips pressed Faith's upon her mouth, Faith forced herself to rest passively in his arms, but when, bewildered, defeated, he raised his face and glared at her out of cheated, accusing eyes, she shuddered and flung an arm across her face, so that she would not have to witness his pain.

"Why did you let me kiss you?" he demanded hoarsely. "It was a brutal way to show me that you didn't care. I won't do it again," he assured her, his head drooping upon his breast, his big, freckled hands locking tightly between his knees.

"I'm sorry, George—and ashamed," she whispered huskily. "You see, I wanted to know—beyond the shadow of a doubt. I've heard that love comes sometimes, like a rushing torrent, in the first kiss. I wanted it to come—if it would. I wanted to love you, because I'm so grateful for love. I need love—but I need, more than anything else, to give love. Some women are like that, George, and some are like—like Cherry, greedy to take, having little to give. I'm sorry—sorry—"

"Don't blame yourself," the man interrupted her fiercely. "I'm ashamed of myself for having flared up at you like that. I'm sorry, too—all broken up, Faith. I think I'm a little off my head. For ten days I've wanted to shout and sing, stop people in the streets and force them to listen—'Say, I've got the finest girl in the world, and I'm going to marry her.' That's what I wanted to yell from the housetops, Faith."

"I know," Faith rested her chin on her clasped hands and brooded over him, her brown eyes drowned with tears of pity—for herself as well as for him.

"I want to give, too—to give you everything lovely that you ought to have and can't. Fine soft silks and gracious velvets for your wonderful conversation. He would bring her Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," which he liked better than any book he had read in ten years. Did she know Rupert Brooke's poems? He had had a sophomore enthusiasm for them during and immediately after the war. He was still young enough to admire the young English poet's boyish disillusion and idealistic cynicism. Did she have the Oxford Book of English Verse? He would give her a copy tomorrow—

"George!" Faith cut in sharply, gripping his arm. "Wasn't that Bob Hathaway who passed us just then? Quick! Turn around! Catch up with him! It's awfully important! Please!"

Without wasting time with questions or quibbling, George swung his car in a wide circle, without losing speed, then accelerated to forty miles an hour.

When the cars were almost abreast, George clapped a palm on the horn button and kept it there until the hoarse clamor caused Bob Hathaway to turn his head, in anger and impatience, to investigate.

"Hello, Bob!" George sang out. "Can you pull up by the road a minute? Faith wants to speak to you."

"Hello!" Faith smiled into his haggard blue eyes when he came striding up to the car in which she sat. "I saw you passing and I wondered why Cherry wasn't with you. She said she had a date with you for this afternoon. Please don't think I'm just prying—"

"Of course not!" Bob Hathaway leaned upon the door of the car, his bare, sunburned arm—he had been driving countless as well as hatless, with the sleeves of his white sport shirt rolled above the elbow—touching Faith's. She quivered at the accidental contact. "Cherry phoned me at two that she was sick, couldn't body, and delicate food that you don't have to cook over a hot stove; books and leisure and travel to feed that clever brain of yours. Listen, Faith, I'll hire the best housekeeper in town to look after your family—"

"I'm glad Dad didn't hear you say that," she interrupted sharply. "The Lanes don't take charity. George, were as proud as the Lincoln Park Platts. Oh, less not quarrel! Don't you think I want to marry you, and live as your wife will live—Beautifully? But I can't, George. I would be broken in the plunge, George, no matter how fine and soft the bed I landed on. You knew that, when you sketched that picture you wanted to paint. Let's be friends, George. I've never had a real friend. I love you in so many ways—"

"All right," he said abruptly, springing to his feet. "We'll have our swim now, and then take it easy going home." He reached a hand to her to help her rise.

"Friends?" she asked, when she stood beside him, holding his hand in both of hers.

He looked away, as if his eyes were searching for strength in the imperceptible beauty of the low, wooded mountains. Then he turned back to her, his face illumined with that sudden, gay smile of his—a gaiety that touched her heart more than his tears of a few moments before had.

"Friends!" He shook hands vigorously. "I'd rather have you for a friend than any other woman as a wife."

They talked eagerly, as if to prove their comradeship, as George drove smoothly at twenty miles an hour back to the city. Now that he knew he could not have her heart, George Pruitt reached out hungrily for her mind. "Did you ever read—"

He was still young enough to admire the young English poet's boyish disillusion and idealistic cynicism. Did she have the Oxford Book of English Verse? He would give her a copy tomorrow—

STERLING EDITOR ADVISES PAPERS ON CONSOLIDATION

D. W. Grandon Spoke to Illinois Press in Annual Meeting

Champaign-Urbana, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Newspaper consolidations were classified as a "modern achievement" and "an economic accomplishment of the most splendid type," by D. W. Grandon, editor of The Daily Gazette of Sterling, Illinois, and president of the LaSalle Post-Tribune Company, in an address delivered here today at the Illinois Press Association convention.

"Go back home and consolidate," was Mr. Grandon's parting word to the editors.

"Waste," Mr. Grandon said, "is probably the most general and worst habit in America. Waste is the greatest enemy of both progress and prosperity. American waste yearly runs into billions of dollars. There is waste of time, waste of fuel, waste of power, waste of light, waste of every kind of material, waste of money. In fact, next to death and taxes, and the certainty of all kinds of weather, waste is the insinuating companion always at our elbow, enticing us to fritter away our time piling up losses and compounding inefficiency."

The consolidation of big business interests has been going on for many years. These consolidations have been an economic necessity. The consolidation of daily and weekly newspapers has been a modern achievement. For many years many cities were afflicted—and the word "afflicted" is used advisedly—by two telephone systems.

The consolidation of telephone systems became a business necessity of such economic type that it could not be denied. In the average community there is just as much need for two dailies or two weekly newspapers as there is for two telephone systems, two gas plants, or two electric light and power plants.

Bring Better Papers. The consolidation of daily and weekly newspapers and there have been many of them in recent years, have almost invariably resulted in better newspapers, better service to both subscribers and advertisers, a stronger and more forceful service to the community. The proprietors have also received more satisfactory returns on their investment, especially where they have been reasonable in their dealings with the public. Where there are two newspapers in a community there must be two investments, two buildings, two plants, generally almost a duplication. Each office must carry a heavy payroll expense for two large forces of employees. There must be two wire services, two telephone services, in fact, a doubled expense in almost every department of newspaper making.

"Naturally business men fear that a combination of two weeklies or daily newspapers will result in higher cost of advertising. Experience has demonstrated that consolidations make advertising costs as a rule from 10 to 25 per cent lower in one paper than in two. At the same time the advertising service to business men has been increased in value from 10 to 25 per cent, making enormous change for the better for both the newspaper and the business community."

Also Brings Unity. "One big advantage of consolidation in a community attempting to support two newspapers has been demonstrated by experience that the community itself becomes more united, supports more fully every public question of importance. The city itself becomes more united. With two newspapers each has an individual or personal following. It is difficult for two editors to keep from scrapping over every needed progressive step in a community. There is a business or an editorial jealousy in 75 percent of the communities that cannot be eliminated. As a result many communities are split on numerous propositions which should receive their solid support simply because one newspaper pulls one way and the other another way even though both declare themselves in favor of the proposed public improvement.

"With one newspaper, under the control of broadminded editors and publishers, many important public questions and community improvements are put across with united support, and magnified successes are achieved that would have been impossible under a divided following lead by two individual newspapers working for the same end but determined to arrive at the final destination by different routes."

"This meeting is being held to discuss methods and measures to make better and more efficient newspapers, all of which is worth while. What the newspaper men here should do, however, is to go back home and consolidate their weeklies in fields only large enough for one weekly and consolidate their dailies in fields only large enough for one daily. All the work and effort of these various conventions to make better newspapers, to give better service, in gatherings of this kind, would be little more than a feather in a whirlwind compared to the actual results for the better to all parties interested, if our editors could go home and consolidate their newspapers immediately. There are many problems facing the newspaper men of Illinois, but all combined are very small indeed, compared to the really great problems of newspaper consolidations."

Play Ball as of Old on the Plains of Texas

San Antonio.—(AP)—Because the cowpunchers of LaSalle county's open spaces take their baseball seriously, a team of boys from Laredo has broken relations with a team from Encinal, thirty-six miles north of the border city.

Baseball, about the only sport near Encinal, is played there as it was throughout the country in the "good old days" and victory is everything to the home fans.

In the last game, the Laredo boys won, 3 to 2, whereupon two Laredo players were put in the Encinal jail for "arguing on the diamond." That night, the other Laredo youths broke open the jail and set their comrades free, and all returned to Laredo.

The next day the sheriff of LaSalle county appeared with warrants for the whole team. The boys were taken to Cotulla, LaSalle county seat, and fined. Then the players resolved never to play Encinal again.

Standards of Service

The service which a railroad is called upon to provide fills an important role in present-day life. Like the keystone of an arch, which helps to support the other stones in the arch, railway service helps to make possible all the other economic activities of modern civilization. Continuity and consistency in railway policy therefore provide a steady influence upon business in general.

In keeping with our conception of the importance of railway service, we endeavor to have the service performed by the Illinois Central System characterized at all times by the highest standards.

Courtesy and efficiency are among the standards by which we measure the success of our efforts to perform the service demanded of the Illinois Central System. We consider them so important that we have incorporated them in our pledge of "Courtesy, Efficient Service Always," and that pledge appears on our emblem as a constant reminder both to the public and to our organization of the type of service which the Illinois Central System is pledged to perform.

Our railroad is further characterized by its contribution to the development of its territory. The Illinois Central System is deeply interested in the well-being of every community and of every industry on its lines. This attitude of our railroad is inspired by an enlightened self-interest, because community prosperity inevitably brings about an increased demand for railway service. It is therefore the constant endeavor of the Illinois Central System to do its full part in advancing the interests of its territory. This we are always seeking new ways to do.

Another characteristic of the Illinois Central System is frankness in dealing with the public. Our railroad—in common with all railroads—has nothing to cover up. It is engaged in performing a public service and it is desirous of having the public fully and correctly informed in regard to its plans and their execution. Our repeated invitation for constructive criticism and suggestions is an expression of this policy and of our confidence in the fair-mindedness of an informed public.

These and other progressive, constructive policies have won for the Illinois Central System a splendid reputation, and such policies will continue to guide the management of our railroad.

We take a justifiable pride in the splendid past performance of the Illinois Central System, but our attention must be directed upon the present and the future more largely than upon the past. Facing the problems of the present and looking forward to the opportunities of the future, we re-dedicate the Illinois Central System to constant improvement in the all-important task of public service.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

President, Illinois Central System.

Death Sting Is Being Removed From Reptiles

New Institute to Take the Poison From Feared Deadly Snakes

Cambridge, Mass.—(AP)—Science has stretched out its hand in the form of the newly organized Antivenom Institute of America to take death dealing powers from the rattler, moccasin and the other venomous snakes.

Dr. Afranio do Amaral, from the state of Sao Paulo Serum Institute and Snake Farm in Brazil, has assumed directorship of the organization and has returned to Harvard from a summer tour of the United States, studying the dangers of the different localities and organizing the institute which is to combat them.

Warring On Poison

Behind this war on poison are Harvard University, the United States army, the Mulford Company of Philadelphia and the United Fruit Company of Boston. The battle has opened on two new fronts this summer, Central and North America, beside the Brazilian state.

The scientific base of the North American division has been established at Harvard. The experimental stations, where the serum is prepared, are at Glenolden, Pa. Field stations for the capture of the reptiles, the extraction of the life saving serum are at San Antonio, New Orleans and San Diego.

Squeeze Out Venom

The field workers go into "snake" country and lassoo the reptiles with a loop of twine on the end of a stick. They are then shipped to the central snake houses of the field stations. The venom is extracted by squeezing the gland contents out through open mouth. The venom is dried and the resulting yellow crystals are sent on to the Glenolden station. The snakes live about six months in captivity and every fortnight they are forced to yield up their store of poison. They are not fed, for the venom is a form of saliva used in digestion.

At Glenolden, a solution is made, tested and standardized. Then, very gradually so that the animals are not made ill, the solution is injected into horses. After six months of this treatment the horse is bled and yields up the serum which is said to have the power to save either human or brute.

Safe And Self Served

After this serum is again standardized and tested, it is put up in vials and is ready for distribution. Death from snake poison is never rapid unless the fangs have struck a vein, a rare occurrence, Dr. Amaral said. Death seldom occurs in less than 24 hours and if, within this limit, the serum is injected, the life is saved.

For practical purposes a polyvalent serum is made which is proof against the venom of all the serpents whose poison has been used in its manufacture. Separate polyvalents are made for Brazil, for South America, and for North America, because of their peculiar species. The serum is distributed in vial-syringes so that a layman can treat himself. The serum holds no danger and its application consists of piercing the skin with the point of the syringe and forcing the life saving fluid in.
